University Profile

Overview

Weber State University is an exceptional comprehensive university providing associate, bachelor and master's degrees to meet the needs of the region. WSU graduates are broadly educated, capable and prepared for meaningful careers, graduate and professional schools, and civic engagement. The hallmark of the university is excellent teaching with extraordinary interactions between faculty and students. WSU offers a wide and diverse variety of degrees/programs (see Programs Sorted by Degree or Programs Sorted by Major/Minor) - the largest and most expansive undergraduate program in the State of Utah. With a student body of over 29,000 drawn predominantly from Utah, but also including students from 48 states and 61 foreign countries, WSU takes pride in its student-centered environment for learning and believes that quality education is founded upon close associations between faculty and students.

WSU is distinguished by outstanding academic programs that recruit motivated students to work with faculty to create and share knowledge. More than fifty academic departments and programs in seven colleges provide learning opportunities for a diverse spectrum of students, including grants and support for undergraduate research, community-based and service learning, an Honors program, and a Bachelor of Integrated Studies (BIS) program. The Office of Undergraduate Research (OUR) and the Center for Community Engaged Learning help to engage students in learning both inside and outside the classroom, and the Honors program provides small classes in a rich, supportive, and challenging academic setting. The BIS offers students the opportunity to design their own degrees with three areas of academic emphasis meant to prepare them for specific career paths or graduate study.

Academic studies are complemented by a wide range of extracurricular activities, including student government, intramural and intercollegiate athletics, and award-winning performing arts groups. In addition, the Student Success Center along with the First Year Experience program helps new students adjust to the university community, while a variety of support services aid those with particular needs.

The WSU Ogden campus has 60 buildings on 526 acres that house abundant classrooms and laboratories, excellent student computing facilities, outstanding performing arts auditoriums, a spacious library, and a well-equipped health and fitness center. An area of continued growth is WSU-Davis, which provides instruction to students on a new high-tech campus in Layton. In addition to its Ogden and Davis campuses, WSU offers courses throughout the state and Intermountain West and is a leader in online instruction.

Historical Perspective

Weber State University was founded in Ogden, Utah, as Weber Stake Academy on January 7, 1889, by the Weber Stake Board of Education of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The 1933 Utah Legislature established Weber College as a state junior college and placed it under the control of the Utah State Board of Education. Following World War II the college outgrew its downtown campus and moved to the present 400-acre site, spectacularly perched on the mountainside overlooking Ogden and the Great Salt Lake.

In 1959 the Utah Legislature authorized the addition of upper division courses, leading to award of the first baccalaureate degrees by Weber State College in 1964. The 1969 Legislature created the Utah System of Higher Education, comprising nine public institutions of higher learning, including Weber State College. The system is governed by a State Board of Regents, and each institution has its own Board of Trustees; members of both boards are appointed by the governor.

In 1990 the state legislature renamed the institution Weber State University, effective New Year's Day 1991, appropriately symbolizing its role as Utah's premier public, undergraduate university.

Catalog Information

The Weber State University catalog is maintained by the Registrar's Office based on approved curricula. Although some areas of information are covered in detail, much of the content is presented in a general way. The catalog is not to be considered a binding contract between Weber State and any student or other institution. Weber State reserves the right to change its regulations or course offerings as conditions require during the period of any student's attendance. Students should refer to the official schedule of classes online which is available before and during registration each semester.

Assessment at WSU

WSU routinely conducts campus-based studies of student attitudes, student achievement, student satisfaction, and personal, professional and career development. These studies are grouped under the heading of student outcomes assessment. Each WSU student is expected to participate in outcomes assessment. While every student is not selected for participation in every activity, it is likely that an individual student will be involved in one or more assessment activities during the college years. It is only through cooperative participation in the assessment process that WSU can better understand itself and better serve its students.

As well, every academic program assesses student learning for both formative and summative assessment purposes. This assessment is generally embedded in the curriculum, but may also utilize outside exams, internships, and portfolios.

For more information on outcomes assessment at WSU, contact the Office of Institutional Effectiveness, Annex 2, 801-626-8586

Discrimination and harassment are illegal and specifically prohibited by the constitutions, statutes, precedents and regulations of the United States and Utah. It is the policy of the University to vigorously enforce these laws among its students and employees.

Commitment to an Inclusive Community

Pivotal to Weber State University's mission is the need to embrace and value the diversity of its members. Acknowledging the uniqueness of each individual, we seek to cultivate an environment that encourages freedom of expression. Because the University is a community where inquiry is nurtured and theories are tested, every individual has the right to feel safe to express ideas that differ from those held by other members of the community. However, all persons who aspire to be part of our campus community must accept the responsibility to demonstrate civility and respect for the dignity of others. Recognizing that the proper balance between freedom of expression and respect for others is not always apparent or easy to achieve, we must continually challenge ourselves and each other in an atmosphere of mutual concern, good will and respect. Therefore, expressions or actions that disparage an individual's or group's ethnicity, gender, religion, sexual orientation, marital status, age or disability are contrary to the mission of Weber State University.

Exceptions to University Policy

All students at Weber State University have the right, with appropriate rationale, to request an exception to University policies or requirements. Help with preparing requests for exceptions can be obtained from the Registrar's Office, SC 101, 801-626-6061, or from the Assistant Dean of Students, Davis Campus Room 261, 801-395-3460.

General Education Requirements

Weber State University General Education Requirements

What is General Education (Gen Ed)?

Gen Ed is shared by all degree-seeking students. Gen Ed credits (~34-40) account for about 2/3 of the Associate's and 1/3 of the Bachelor's degrees. Gen Ed provides broad exposure to diverse disciplines and is the foundation for developing intellectual tools and responsibility to the self and others.

What is the mission of General Education?

To provide students with the foundational knowledge and intellectual tools that enhance and transcend their academic program of study. The big questions posed by Gen Ed courses address significant issues about the world. Gen Ed courses help students apply their learning and develop personal and social responsibility, which is demonstrated through signature assignments.

Why is General Education required of all students?

Gen Ed is not a random series of courses to "get out of the way" - it is a program of courses to lead the way to students' future success in higher education, the workplace, and the community. Because Gen Ed courses are framed around a Big Question, which is tapped by a Signature Assignment, students repeatedly exercise Gen Ed Learning Outcomes (GELOs) and "cross-train" their mind.

What are the General Education Program Requirements?

Students are required to take CORE courses in Composition, Quantitative Literacy, American Institutions, Information Literacy and Diversity (~10-16 credits) and BREADTH courses in Creative Arts and Humanities (9 credits), Physical and Life Sciences (9 credits), and Social Sciences (6 credits).

What are WSU courses?

WSU courses are interdisciplinary, variable credit (3-5), team-taught, and limited enrollment courses that satisfy requirements in two areas (core or breadth) of Gen Ed (with a passing grade). Students get the benefit of the expertise of two WSU faculty members in courses that engage their mind and challenge their thinking. For more information, see https://www.weber.edu/GenEd/WSU_Courses.html.

What is the Gen Ed Certificate of Completion?

The Certificate of Completion is awarded when students complete all core and breadth requirements with a minimum 2.0 GPA. Once awarded, it will appear on students' transcripts and is considered part of their official record. The Certificate allows students to "lock in" their Gen Ed credits and is transferable between institutions in the Utah System of Higher Education.

What is the Interstate Passport?

WSU participates in the Interstate Passport Initiative wherein a block of Gen Ed courses is accepted between institutions and noted on students' transcripts for articulation purposes. WSU issues the Passport upon completion of the Gen Ed Certificate of Completion with a C or better in all Gen Ed courses. WSU Gen Ed requirements are met (except for American Institutions, a Gen Ed requirement mandated by the Utah State Legislature) for incoming students who have earned a Passport elsewhere. For more information, see weber.edu/passport.

Who can help me plan my General Education courses?

Before selecting General Education courses, students should consult with an Academic Advisor (weber.edu/advisors) and review their Cattracks degree evaluation (eWeber student portal).

Core General Education Requirements

The core requirements listed below apply to all Bachelor's degrees and AA/AS degrees. It is recommended that students complete these requirements within the first 60 credit hours. General education requirements for AAS degrees vary and are specified by each program.

General Education Certificate of Completion

The Certificate of Completion in General Education is official proof that a student has completed the general education requirements of an Associate or Bachelor degree. Once awarded, it will appear on students' transcripts and is considered part of their permanent record. Students must have a minimum GPA of 2.0 to be awarded the General Education Certificate of Completion.

Privacy Rights

The WSU Records Office maintains student records in accordance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), which affords students the right to inspect and review their educational records, the right to seek to have the records amended, and the right to have some control over the disclosure of information from the records. The law generally requires that written consent of the student be received before personally identifiable data about the student is released. Institutions may release, without written consent, those items specified as public or directory information, provided the institution informs students of the data designated as public information and gives students prior opportunity to refuse disclosure of any or all categories of that information. Directory information at Weber State University is currently specified to include name, address, telephone number, major (program of study), dates of attendance, degree(s) received, full-time/part-time status, and honors received. A student may have their public or directory information made confidential by submitting a written request to the Registrar's Office.

If a student feels that information other than directory information has been made public in violation of this act, they may contact the Registrar's Office to file a formal grievance. Copies of the entire policy or information about specific procedures may be obtained from the Office of the Registrar.

Transcripts

Students may obtain official copies of their academic transcripts from the Registrar's Solution Center. There is a $5.00 charge for this service. For students who attended prior to Summer 2010, four fee-free transcripts will be provided if the request is made in person or by mail.

- Transcripts picked up in person require photo identification.
- Transcript requests may be made by mail or online at www.weber.edu/records (telephone requests cannot be accepted) and should include the student's name, social security number or WSU student ID number, birthdate, student's signature and complete address where the transcript should be sent.
- Transcript requests by anyone other than the student must be accompanied by a written release from the student that includes:
 - A sentence stating that you have given your consent to a friend or a relative to pick up your transcript
 - The name of your friend or relative that will be retrieving your transcript
 - Your full name and any prior names
 - Your Social Security Number or Student ID Number and birthdate
 - Your approximate dates of enrollment

- Your signature

The person receiving the record will be asked to show photo identification.

A printable copy of a transcript request form is available via the WSU Web site at weber.edu/records. Requests should be mailed to: Weber State University, Records Office, 3885 West Campus Dr. DEPT 1102, Ogden, UT 84408-1102; or emailed as a pdf or jpeg attachment to records@weber.edu.

Record Holds

Transcripts and diplomas will not be issued for students who owe money to the University for financial aid, library fines, housing, traffic tickets, etc. Students may access their grades on the Internet with a "Wildcat Username" and password. To obtain information about access to the eWeber student portal, contact the Computing Support Center Help Desk at 801-626-7777.

Grading

Grade System

The following grades and numeric point values are used to compute the cumulative grade point average (GPA).

A	Excellent	4.0
A-	Excellent	3.7
B+	Good	3.3
B	Good	3.0
B-	Good	2.7
C+	Standard	2.3
C	Standard	2.0
C-	Standard	1.7
D+	Sub-Standard	1.3
D	Sub-Standard	1.0
D-	Sub-Standard	0.7
E	Failure	0.0

UWUnofficial Withdrawal 0.0

To calculate a cumulative GPA, the total number of grade points (the number of credit hours per course multiplied by the numeric points listed above for the grade) is divided by the total number of credit hours.

Courses coded with an R in front of the grade (indicating academic renewal), or an E in the far right column of the form (indicating exclusion due to a repeat), are not used in computing the GPA, the graduation hours, or the total hours completed. Courses coded ND (non-degree) are not used in computing the GPA or the graduation hours completed, but they are included in computing the total hours attempted.

Courses with the following notations in the grade column are not used in computing the GPA, the graduation hours, or the total hours completed (with the exception of CR-Credit courses which may be used toward graduation hours or total hours).

AU-Audit

- Indicates the student was allowed to sit in a class without earning credit or a grade.
- Audit students who fail to attend class without withdrawing may be issued a withdrawal (W). (See Registration section of this catalog.)

CE-Continuing Education Unit

- Students who enroll in a Continuing Education Unit through the Continuing Education Office will receive a CE grade. It is not counted in the WSU GPA or Total Hours, but can be listed on a transcript.

CR-Credit

- Indicates the student registered for a course on a pass/fail basis and earned a C- or better. (See Registration section of this catalog.)
- Certain courses are offered on a credit/no credit basis only and letter grades are not given.
- Credit/no credit courses may only be used as electives in a student graduation requirements. Classes taken on a credit/no credit basis will not satisfy major, minor, or general education requirements with exception of those courses or programs of study approved by the University Curriculum and General Education committees and those courses approved by academic departments for credit by special examination.
- A maximum of 20 hours of credit/no credit electives may be used for graduation.

I-Incomplete

- Indicates the student was unable to complete the course for a legitimate reason (such as accident or illness) after having completed a substantial portion (approximately 80%) of the required work.

- A written contract between the student and the instructor indicates the work still to be done and the deadline for its completion (within 12 months).
- The student must complete remaining work without re-registering or attending the class during a subsequent semester.
- Credit hours are not counted until a letter grade is posted.
- All incomplete (I) courses must be completed prior to graduation.

NC-No Credit

- Indicates the student registered for a course on a credit/no-credit basis and earned less than a C-.
- Students who stop attending a class for which they are registered on a credit/no-credit basis without officially withdrawing will receive an NC grade entry for that class.
- Certain courses are offered on a credit/no credit basis only and letter grades are not given.

NG-No Grade Reported

- The instructor has not reported a grade for the course.

SC-Special Credit

- The student has received credit through an examination, waiver, or substitution for which they are not eligible for a letter grade.
- These credits are counted toward the total number of credits required for graduation but are not used to calculate the cumulative grade point average.
- Special credits may be used for graduation requirements as determined by the academic departments.

T-Temporary Grade

- The course is being continued in the subsequent semester and a grade and credits will be calculated when the course is complete and a letter grade has been issued. The "T" grade is approved for specific courses only.

UW-Unofficial Withdrawal

- Indicates the student stopped attending the course without officially withdrawing. UWs are calculated as failing grades in the student's semester and cumulative grade point averages.

W-Withdrawal

- The student withdrew from the course in the interval comprising the 16th through the 50th business day of a semester or the 30th business day of a block. Withdrawals are not permitted after the 50th business day of a semester or 30th business day of a block.

Changing of Grades

- Grades may be changed only by the instructor who submitted the original grade.
- Students who feel their work has been evaluated unfairly should contact the instructor.
- Students who choose to complete a course on a credit/no credit basis may petition the Registrar's Office to have a CR grade replaced by the earned letter grade if they recently changed their major or minor and need the letter grade to meet graduation requirements for the new major or minor.

Repeat Courses

- Repeated courses will be automatically flagged as part of the grading process at the end of each term.
- Each course (unless specifically listed as repeatable for credit in the course description) may be used only once in cumulative hours and GPA.
- A course will appear on the transcript each time it is completed, but it will be counted only once in total hours and only the most recent letter WSU grade received will be used to calculate the GPA (CR is not considered a letter grade and will not cause a previous grade to be discounted).
- Once a bachelor's degree has been posted to a student's permanent record, courses used for that degree may not be repeated to improve their GPA.

Academic Renewal Policy

1. The applicant for academic renewal must be a currently enrolled undergraduate student or must have been enrolled during the previous term. Students who are not currently enrolled and who cannot obtain financial aid until their GPA is recalculated using Academic Renewal should begin the process with Academic Records and take written evidence of the initiation of this process to the Financial Aid Office.

2. Academic renewal may be requested only once during a student's academic career.
 3. Once a certificate, associate, or bachelor degree is awarded by Weber State University or received as a transfer credit, any Weber State course(s) completed prior to the completion of that certificate or degree will not qualify for academic renewal. However, WSU courses completed after receiving a certificate or associate degree, but before completion of a bachelor degree, are eligible for renewal if they meet the requirements.
 4. The policy does not apply to graduate students or students pursuing a second bachelor's degree.
 5. Grades of "D+" or less which were earned six years or more prior to the petition date will not be computed in the GPA.
 6. Academic requirements may not be satisfied by courses to which academic renewal has been applied.
 7. Hours not used for GPA purposes are not used to satisfy total and upper division credit hour requirements.
 8. The Academic Renewal Policy will apply only to courses taken at Weber State University.
 9. Only the calculation of a student's GPA will be affected by this policy.
 10. This policy applies to WSU GPA calculation only. A student's GPA when transferring or applying for graduate/professional schools will be calculated according to the policy of that institution, i.e. the receiving institution may average the grades or use the original grades.
 11. Students who are applying for academic renewal and graduating in the same semester must notify the Graduation Department.
- Applications for academic renewal and detailed policy information are available at the Records Office or at www.weber.edu/records.*

Credit by Examination or Petition

Contact: Records Office

Location: Student Services Center, Room 101

Telephone: 801-626-6100

Students may receive WSU degree credit by examination or petition under the following restrictions:

- The student must be a WSU-admitted student.
- The student must pay the appropriate recording fee in addition to specific test fees.
- Credit will not be given if it duplicates previous examinations, petitions, or course work for which a student received a grade (A-E) or notation I, T, W, UW, CR, NC.
- Credit by examination or petition will not be considered part of the residency requirement.
- Credit by examination or petition, although graded with credit (SC), may be used to satisfy major, minor and general education requirements.

Advanced Placement Examination (AP)

- AP credit is earned by completing one or more high school AP courses and successfully completing the appropriate exam(s) while in high school.
- WSU credit hours may be earned with each AP examination score of 3, 4, or 5. Credit awarded is at the discretion of the academic department. Some departments require a score of 4 or 5 for the awarding of credit. Please see <http://www.weber.edu/admissions/aptests.html> for details.
- To have credit evaluated, a student must submit their scores and pay a $10 recording fee.
 - Scores may be submitted to the Admissions Office as a part of the Admissions process, or
 - Scores may be submitted to the Admissions Office in person, along with a receipt for the $10 recording fee payment.
- If a student submits AP, CLEP, and IB scores for evaluation, the IB scores will be awarded first. If the AP or CLEP credit duplicates the IB credit already awarded, the AP and CLEP credits will be reduced by the amount of credit awarded for the IB Higher-Level Subject in the specific area.

International Baccalaureate Credit (IB)

- A student who completes the IB Diploma program will receive 30 semester credit hours, a waiver of all Breadth Requirements contained in the general education requirements, and a waiver of the University Diversity requirement. To further waive the Core Requirements of general education, a student must complete the corresponding Higher-Level Subject with a score of five (5) or higher.
- If the IB Diploma is not earned, students will be awarded eight (8) semester hours of credit and a waiver of the corresponding general education requirement for each Higher-Level Subject completed with a score of five (5) or higher.
- If a student submits AP, CLEP, and IB scores for evaluation, the IB scores will be awarded first. If the AP or CLEP credit duplicates the IB credit already awarded the AP and CLEP credits will be reduced by the amount of credit awarded for the IB Higher-Level Subject in the specific area.
- A student must be admitted and matriculated at WSU to have IB credit evaluated.
- Once test results have been received, students eligible for credit will receive an evaluation from the Admissions Office with instructions about how to have credits added to their transcript.

College Level Examination Program (CLEP)

- CLEP is a way for students to earn college credit by completing one or more of the General or Subject Examinations administered by the Testing Center.
- Applications and further information on the procedure, fees, and testing schedule are available from the WSU Testing Center.

- A student's test scores will be considered if the student drops the same course within the first 3 weeks of the semester.
- Students must submit examination scores and a receipt for the $10 application fee to the Admissions Office to initiate the evaluation process.

Special Examination

- Special examinations may be arranged to earn credit for some WSU courses not covered by CLEP testing. Each department determines which courses will qualify.
- Students must provide evidence of sufficient background in the area to be tested.
- Applications for Special Examinations and further information about requirements, limitations, and fees may be obtained from the academic departmental offices.

Foreign Language Credit for Prior Language Experience

- Students with prior language experience may be given foreign language credit by examination or by passing an upper division (3000-level or higher) course with a minimum grade of C. See the Foreign Language Department for applications and more information.

Credit for Military Training

- Students who have completed at least 24 months of active military service may be granted a maximum of 10 credit hours. These credits are awarded as social science general education course HLTH 1030 (3 credit hours) and 7 elective credit hours.
- Students who have completed four or more years in the National Guard or a reserve unit may be granted social science general education course HLTH 1030 (3 credit hours) and 7 elective credit hours.
- Additional credit may be granted for military schooling if specific requirements are met.
- To receive credit students should submit military form DD-214 and a receipt for the $10 recording fee to the Records Office to start the process.
- Military credit will be evaluated only if it can be applied to a legitimate undergraduate degree program. Students who have already earned a bachelor's degree may have their credit evaluated upon request.
- Military credit is added to a student's total credit hours completed, and may reduce a student's eligibility for financial aid.
- More information can be found at: http://www.weber.edu/Records/Military_Credit.html

Credit for Courses from Non-accredited Schools and Colleges

- Students with credit from non-accredited schools may request transfer credit for certain courses which are equivalent to courses described in the catalog.
- Official transcripts with the Application for Transfer Credit form should be taken to the appropriate academic department for evaluation. Transfer credits from non-accredited schools may be accepted under the following guidelines.
- Credit may be accepted only if the course is deemed to be equivalent to a course at in the WSU catalog.
- Specific course credit may be applied by the Records Office if recommended and approved by the appropriate department chair with the Application for Transfer Credit form which can be obtained from the Records Office.

Credit for Experiential Learning and Industrial or Commercial Training

- Credit for experiential learning shown to be equivalent to courses described in the catalog may be allowed by some departments according to specific guidelines.
- Application for Credit forms and further information are available from the major and minor department offices.

Minimum GPA Standards

The minimum cumulative institutional grade point average (GPA) required at WSU is 2.00 or C. The minimum institutional GPA required by the University for graduation is 2.00; however, many majors and minors have a higher requirement. Students with a GPA below 2.00 will receive one of the following notices and should see an academic advisor immediately.

Academic Warning

- Students with a cumulative institutional GPA below 2.00 will be placed on academic warning. They must earn a semester GPA of at least 2.00 each semester until their cumulative WSU GPA reaches 2.00 to remain on academic warning and avoid academic probation. Students whose cumulative WSU GPA reaches 2.00 will be restored to good academic standing.

Academic Probation

- Students who earn a semester GPA below 2.00 while on academic warning will be placed on academic probation. They must earn a semester GPA of at least 2.00 each semester until their cumulative WSU GPA reaches 2.00 to remain on academic probation and avoid academic suspension. Students whose cumulative WSU GPA reaches 2.00 will be restored to good academic standing.

Academic Suspension

- Students who earn a semester GPA below 2.00 while on academic probation will be placed on a one-semester academic suspension. After serving the one-semester suspension, students will be returned to academic warning and will be eligible to re-enroll at the institution.

Appeal Procedure

- Students who have been placed on academic warning, probation, or suspension and feel their classification is in error should see the Associate Registrar to review their records and receive information regarding the process of appeal.
- Students who have received an academic suspension will be required to serve the full suspension length of one semester before re-enrolling at the University unless their classification was made in error.

Academic Excellence

Each semester, students who complete at least 12 credit hours with letter grades (CR/NC grades and ND courses will not be counted) will qualify for academic excellence recognition on the basis of their semester GPA as follows:

4.00 for the High Academic Excellence Certificate

3.50 to 3.99 for the Academic Excellence Certificate

Student Activity Eligibility

Students participating in activities such as student government, university organizations, clubs, special awards, and intramural athletics should be matriculated students working toward a degree or certificate. Many individual programs and organizations have standards higher than this minimum.

Intercollegiate Athletics Eligibility

Students participating in NCAA sports must be enrolled as full-time students in a Bachelor's degree program, must remain in good academic standing, and must meet the satisfactory progress policies of the University, the Big Sky Conference, and the NCAA. Details of these requirements may be obtained from the Eligibility or Compliance Office.

Semester that all your degree requirements will be complete:	Graduation Application Deadline:	Commencement program that your name will be listed in:	Graduation Requirement Completion Deadline:
Summer 2020	June 26, 2020	December 2020	October 5, 2020
Fall 2020	October 2, 2020	December 2020	February 1, 2021

Summer 2021*	July 2, 2021	December 2021	October 11, 2021

*NOTE: Summer graduation candidates who wish to participate in the Spring commencement ceremonies should apply for Summer, but follow the Spring semester deadline.

Students who are nearing completion of Graduation Requirements, should take the following steps:

1. Schedule an appointment and meet with your advisor(s) as required. Keep in mind that you may need to see a college advisor, a major advisor, and a minor advisor. NOTE: Students seeking an Associate of Science or Arts degree in General Studies should meet with an Academic Advisor in the Student Success Center.
2. Review your Cattracks degree evaluation with your advisor(s). Make sure that your Program of Study is correctly listed in your Cattracks degree evaluation and then check for missing requirements with your advisor(s). Program of Study corrections must be completed with your advisor prior to submitting your graduation application.
3. Submit your application for the semester that all of your program requirements will be complete. Applications are online - log into your eWeber portal, search for "Graduation Application" in the search bar and then follow the instructions outlined in the graduation application.
4. Commencement Ceremony information will be sent to all candidates who apply by the application deadline.

All possible care is taken in checking student records for graduation; however, it is the sole responsibility of the student to verify all requirements for a degree.

- The Graduation Office will confirm that the requirements defined in the student's degree evaluation are completed before posting their degree or certificate.
- Students who do not complete graduation requirements by the Graduation Requirement Completion Deadline or who change their graduation semester should notify the Graduation Office of their new anticipated semester graduation date. Complete policy information on Graduation Requirement Deadline is at http://www.weber.edu/ppm/Policies/4-1_GraduationStandards.html
- Diplomas will be sent and degrees will be posted to student transcripts the semester following completion.

Changes in Graduation/Catalog Requirements

Entering students, including first-time and transfer students, will be required to complete the degree and program requirements listed in the catalog in effect when they first enroll, with the following exceptions:

- When students change their program of study, they are then required to graduate under the catalog in effect when they declare the new program of study (see Program of Study (Major/Minor) Declaration).
- Students must complete major and minor requirements under a catalog no older than 6 years for a bachelor's degree or 3 years for an associate's degree, respectively. Students taking longer to graduate may either choose to graduate under the requirements from the oldest active catalog or under the catalog which is in effect at the time they file for graduation.

Requests for Exceptions to Graduation Requirements

Requests for exceptions to graduation requirements are considered only on the basis of substantial and reasonable grounds. Students should contact the academic department who has oversight for the major or minor requirements for more information about their exceptions process. Questions about all other degree requirements can be brought to the Registrar's Office.

Completed Degree

Once a degree has been completed, the degree title and program name cannot be altered and a student cannot change factors related to that degree; courses cannot be repeated to improve the GPA, grades cannot be changed, and majors or minors cannot be added. If a student continues to earn a second bachelor's degree or a master's degree, credit hour and GPA calculations begin again. If a student continues on to earn a bachelor's degree after earning an associate's degree, the grades earned toward the associate's degree will be used in calculating cumulative GPA for the bachelor's degree. Academic renewal cannot be applied to courses taken prior to the posting of an associate's degree.

Awarding of Multiple Degrees

- Students may receive multiple degrees in the same academic year. However, students who first earn their degree in a specific academic area, with the exception of the AAS degrees and certificates, will not be awarded a general A.S. or A.A. degree in a subsequent term.
- Students must apply for each degree requested.

Second Bachelor's Degree

A student may qualify for admission to a second baccalaureate degree following the completion of a first bachelor's degree at an accredited institution. The first and second baccalaureate degrees may not be awarded during the same semester or term. To qualify for a second degree, a student must complete a minimum of 30 credit hours in residence at WSU with a GPA of at least 2.00 and fulfill all requirements for the programs declared in second degree. For students whose first baccalaureate degree is also from Weber State University, credits earned in conjunction with but beyond the minimum credits required for the first degree may be applied toward the second baccalaureate degree. However, a minimum of 12 semester credit hours must be earned at WSU after the first degree is conferred. All candidates for a second bachelor's degree must satisfy the university's diversity (DV) requirement. Interruption or Changes in Instruction Due to Circumstances Beyond the Reasonable Control of the University

Each semester the University will endeavor to provide courses and services as it traditionally has including face-to-face or hybrid instruction for those courses for which all or a portion would normally occur on site. However, as recent experience has taught us, the traditional delivery of courses may be interrupted or changed due to circumstances beyond the reasonable control of the University. Such circumstances may be a health emergency, like the recent COVID-19 outbreak, closure of the University due to damage or destruction of the physical facilities, like an earthquake, or other events including but not limited to natural or person-made events such as civil unrest, strike, cyberattack, pandemic, directive of government or health authorities, etc. (hereinafter "Circumstances Beyond the Reasonable Control of the University"). In the event of the interruption of or changes in instruction caused by Circumstances Beyond the Reasonable Control of the University you recognize and agree that the University may deliver all or part of the courses and services in a virtual environment or in other non-traditional ways. This may occur at any time including prior to the start of or in the middle of a semester. Agreeing to the statement and registering for courses acknowledges your understanding and acceptance of this delivery method. In addition, you recognize and agree that in the event of Circumstances Beyond the Reasonable Control of the University that cause courses to be suspended or canceled that the University will make a good faith determination of when or if courses will be resumed and may determine that the courses are sufficiently complete for the awarding of credit without further instruction with or without final exams, projects, papers, etc. You agree that the University's decision in such cases is final and that you will be entitled only to a refund of a pro rata amount of tuition if courses are not finished and not resumed or rescheduled or no refund if courses are completed and you agree that this is your sole remedy. In addition, you agree to waive any right to seek damages, direct or indirect resulting from or related to Circumstances Beyond the Reasonable Control of the University. If the University determines to provide pro rata refunds, you agree that such refunds may be in the form of a tuition credit for future semesters.

The WSU FINANCIAL AID CODE IS 003680. This code will be needed to complete your FAFSA application online at <https://studentaid.gov/h/apply-for-aid/fafsa>. All other applications and forms are available online at www.weber.edu.

1. Complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) or the Renewal Application (for continuing students) at <https://studentaid.gov/h/apply-for-aid/fafsa>.
2. Submit additional, required documents through Financial Aid Verify, located in the eWeber student portal.

The Review Process

Students are advised to apply online at <https://studentaid.gov/h/apply-for-aid/fafsa>. Applications will go through a Federal "needs analysis." The ability of a student and the student's family to contribute, as well as other resources, will determine the need for financial assistance. Students will receive a Student Aid Report (SAR) which will provide information on the expected family contribution and financial need.

Once a student's FAFSA is sent to Weber State University, it will be reviewed in the order it was received. As part of the review, our office may require additional information which may include, but is not limited to, official academic transcripts, tax return transcripts, marriage documentation, citizenship documentation, and/or emancipation documentation.

Students will be notified through their Wildcat Mail of additional requirements. If a student feels that their FAFSA does not accurately reflect their situation, they should contact a Financial Aid Advisor.

When a student's file is complete, an award notice will be emailed to the student, directing them to their student portal. Students can view/accept their award(s) through the eWeber student portal, under Award Information.

An award may be canceled if the Award Offer is not accepted within the specified time period.

Satisfactory Academic Progress

In order to receive financial aid, students must meet qualitative and quantitative academic standards.

Qualitative (Academic Standing)

In addition to the University's standards, all students who receive financial aid must maintain at least a "C" average overall GPA (2.00) by the end of their fourth semester. This includes transfer work. Students not meeting this requirement will be disqualified from financial aid until they bring their overall GPA to the minimum requirement.

Quantitative (Completion Rate & Maximum Time Frame)

Students who receive financial aid must satisfactorily complete (receive grades other than I, T, W, UW, NC, E, or AU) at least 67% of their attempted credits, on a semester-by-semester and overall basis.

Students who receive financial aid must also complete their program of study within 150% of their program length. For example, a student in a bachelor's program that requires 126 credits will need to complete their program within 189 attempted credit hours. A student in an associate's degree that requires 62 credits will need to complete their program within 94 attempted credits. A student in a certificate program that requires 30 credits will need to complete their program within 45 attempted credits.

Any exceptions to these requirements must be approved by the Financial Aid & Scholarship Petition Committee (see Petitions and Reinstatement of Aid).

Eligibility Status

Students who receive financial aid and complete less than the minimum number of credit hours required by their award level will be put on financial aid denial or warning.

Please be aware that any time a student drops a class, there will be financial aid consequences.

Credit hours transferred from other colleges/universities will be included in the total hour eligibility for Satisfactory Academic Progress whether or not financial aid was received at the other institution(s).

If students change their program of study, credit hours completed for the previous major or majors will still be included in the total number of hours for financial aid eligibility even though the credit hours may or may not satisfy program requirements for the new major. If a student cannot complete their program within the maximum time frame for their program (150% of credits needed for graduation), their financial aid will be denied.

Petitions & Reinstatement of Aid

Students who are denied financial aid, but who experienced extenuating circumstances, may petition to have their denial removed. Petitions include 1) a letter from the student 2) documentation of their circumstance and 3) a graduation plan. All petitions are reviewed by the Financial Aid & Scholarship Petition Committee.

For students who do not have extenuating circumstances, or whose petition is denied, can regain financial aid eligibility by paying for their courses with other funding until they meet the completion rate and GPA Satisfactory Academic Progress requirements.

Programs must be completed within the maximum time frame.

Withdrawals and Return of Title IV Funds

Withdrawals will negatively affect your satisfactory academic progress calculation. If you completely withdraw from school, you may be required to return a portion, if not all, of the financial aid awarded for the semester.

If you are dropping some, but not all of your classes, make sure you know how this could affect your Pell Grant.

Return to Title IV Policy (R2T4)

Federal regulations require your eligibility for aid to be recalculated whenever you withdraw from the university, either officially or unofficially. The recalculation determines the amount of aid you have "earned" by prorating according to the percent of the term completed before withdrawing.

After the 60% point in the semester or period of enrollment, you are considered to have earned 100% of the Title IV funds you were scheduled to receive during that period.

The Financial Aid and Scholarship Office will use the withdraw date recorded in the Registrar's Office as your official withdrawal date from the university. In the case of unofficial withdrawals (i.e. dropped courses, UW grades, and/or retroactive withdrawals), your last date of attendance is reported by the instructor. When such a date can't be determined, the midpoint of the semester is used as your last date of attendance.

A repayment of aid is required when the actual amount of aid disbursed is greater than the amount earned, as determined by the recalculation. The university will return funds to the Title IV Program on your behalf when you owe an overpayment, and the university will consider the returned funds as your debt to the institution.

If the overpayment is not repaid by the end of the semester:

- A hold is placed on future registration.
- Your account is referred to the Loan Servicing Department for collection.
- You will be put on financial aid denial and will not be eligible to receive any future federal financial aid funding until the overpayment is paid in full and satisfactory progress requirements have been met.

A post-withdrawal disbursement will be made if you had eligibility for the Title IV funds (essentially earning more aid than was disbursed.) If you are entitled to a post-withdrawal disbursement:

- You will be sent an email informing you that you are entitled to additional funding.
- You must respond within 14 days of the receipt of the notification confirming the receipt of loan funds.
- You will be informed what type of funds you are eligible to receive and reminded that if the funds are loans, you are responsible for the repayment.
- If you still have outstanding institutional balances, the funds will be applied to the balance first.

A school must return Title IV funds to the programs from which you received aid during the semester as soon as possible, but no later than 45 days after the date it determines you withdrew. Funds are returned in the following order, as applicable.

1. Unsubsidized Federal Stafford loans
2. Subsidized Federal Stafford loans
3. Federal PLUS loans
4. Federal Pell Grants

5. Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (FSEOG)

Sample Calculations

Example 1: Withdrawal Date: February 23, 2016

You initially received $1,979 in Direct Unsubsidized Loan and $1,155 in Direct Subsidized Loan. You attended 44% of the term, so the repayment amount, which must be repaid immediately, is calculated to be $1,121. Your revised award is $858 in Direct Unsubsidized Loan and $1,155 in Direct Subsidized Loan.

Example 2: Withdrawal Date: March 22, 2016

You initially received $1,484 in Direct Unsubsidized Loan, $2226 in Direct Subsidized Loan, and $1,381 in Pell Grant. You attended 62% of the term, so no repayment is required. You are allowed to keep all the aid initially awarded.

Student Expense Budget (Cost of Attendance)

The cost of attending Weber State University includes direct educational costs such as tuition, fees, books and supplies, as well as living costs such as room and board. Below is a table that gives an approximate budget for students attending the 2018-2019 fall and spring semesters. Students should use this only as an estimate when planning their education expenses.

Sample Budget: 2018-2019 Undergraduate - 2 semesters at Full Time Attendance

	In-state (Utah residents)*	Out-of state (non-resident)*
Tuition and Fees (2 semesters)	$6,156	$16,438
Misc. Expenses	$3000	$3000
Books (estimated)	$1,400	$1,400
Room & Board  (on-campus housing)	$10,000	$10,000

Based on attending full time for 2 semesters. Please note that these amounts are from last year. Graduate tuition and fees vary by program. Current tuition and fee amounts by credit hour load are published on the web at weber.edu/bursar/TuitionFee_Tables.html.*

Room and board can vary greatly depending on whether or not students live in the dorms and what meal plan they select.*

Changes in Registration

- Students may add classes online or at the registration windows (Registrar's Solution Center at the Ogden campus, Davis campus, West center and Morgan center) through the 5th business day of the semester or block. Instructor approval will be required to add a class beginning on the 6th business day of the semester or block.
- Students may drop classes online or at the registration windows (Registrar's Solution Center) through the deadline dates (see the Academic Calendar online). There are different deadlines for refunds and grading when withdrawing from classes.
- Students are strongly encouraged to plan their class schedules in consultation with an advisor to avoid unnecessary changes and ensure efficient progress toward completion of degree requirements.
- Students receiving financial aid should be careful not to reduce their credit hour load below the minimum number of hours required by their award level.

Closed Classes

- Only academic departments and instructors have the authority to admit students to closed classes.
- Students may contact the individual department and/or the instructor for specific procedures regarding admission to closed classes.

Credit/No Credit (CR/NC) Registration

The basic objective of credit/no credit grading is to allow students the opportunity to enroll in classes outside their major or minor on a pass (CR)/fail (NC) basis without affecting their GPA. The following rules apply:

- Freshmen students may take no more than one class per term on a credit/no credit basis.
- Students with 30 or more credit hours who have a cumulative GPA of 2.0 or above may register for no more than two classes per term on credit/no credit basis.
- A maximum of 20 hours of credit/no credit in elective courses may be used for graduation.
- Classes taken on a credit/no credit basis will not satisfy major, minor, general education, or specific course requirements. The University Curriculum and General Education Committee have designated a few exceptions to this rule. Please see the academic department for information on these course exceptions.
- Grades on the credit/no credit system are not included in computing the term or cumulative grade point average. A grade of credit is recorded only for letter grades of C- and above. Grades less than C-, including UW, will be recorded as no credit.
- Students who change their Program of Study must submit the appropriate form to the Records Office and request the grade be changed to the letter grade issued by the instructor if a credit/no credit course applies to the new Program of Study.
- If a student has previously taken a course for a letter grade, the same course may not be retaken for credit/no-credit.
- Choice of credit/no credit registration should be made at the beginning of the term, but a student may change classes to credit/no credit status until the CR/NC deadline. This date can be found in the University's Academic Calendar.
- The instructor is not notified when a student takes a class for a credit/no credit grade. The instructor will assign a letter grade on the Final Grade Report and then the Records Office will convert the letter grades to credit or no credit.

Audit Course Registration

The basic objective of taking a class as audit is to allow students the opportunity to attend a class without earning either a grade or credit for the class.

- Students registering to audit a class will pay tuition and fees per the current tuition and fee schedule.
- Students in regulated programs, i.e. Financial Aid and Athletics, are subject to the respective program guidelines for audit registration.
- Some courses may not be open to audit students because of classroom space limitations. Students must receive instructor permission to audit a class.
- Choice of audit registration should be made at the beginning of the term, but a student may change classes to audit status until the audit deadline. This date can be found in the University's Academic Calendar.
- Students auditing classes are expected to attend on a regular basis. Students may officially withdraw from the audited class according to the deadline. Audit students failing to attend class may be issued a "W" grade at the discretion of the instructor.
- Senior Citizens (Utah residents ages 62 and over) may audit a course as a Lifetime Learner for a $10.00 fee per semester, on a space available basis, by applying at the Admissions Office. Lifetime Learner's selecting this option for courses do not have the option to receive a letter grade nor credit on their transcript for these courses.

Registration Credit Hour Loads

- It is recommended that undergraduate students planning to graduate with a bachelor's degree in four years register for at least 15 credit hours per semester.
- Undergraduate students are classified as full-time if they register for 12 or more credit hours, as three-quarter time with 9 credit hours, and as half-time with 6 credit hours.
- Graduate students are classified as full-time if they register for 9 or more credit hours, and as half-time if they register for 5 or more credit hours.

Overload Registration

- Students may register for a maximum of 20 credit hours without special permission.
- Students with a cumulative GPA of 3.50 or better may petition for a maximum of 24 credit hours, and students with a cumulative GPA of 3.75 or better may petition for additional credit hours. Petition forms are available from academic departments or the Registrar's Solution Center.

Withdrawal

- Students can withdraw from individual classes online according to the deadlines on the Academic Calendar.
- Students who want to completely withdraw from the semester or block may do so online according to the deadlines on the Academic Calendar. Students who need help may come in-person with picture ID to the Registrar's Solution Center, SC 101, or the Davis Campus, D2 246, or may send an email request to registration@weber.edu from their Weber email account ending in @mail.weber.edu, or send a signed written request via fax (801-626-6679) or mail (1102 University Circle, Ogden, UT 84408). Requests should always include the student name, W#, and a clear statement explaining the request.

Go to the Cashier's Office page online (www.weber.edu/bursar/RefundDates) and check the Refund Policy and Deadlines before making a decision to drop classes. You will be accountable to the refund schedule for any tuition and fee costs associated with the time you spent registered for your classes.

- From the 16th to 50th business day of a semester, or 16th to 30th business day of a block, students may withdraw from classes online or by submitting a completed "Withdrawal from Class" form to the Registrar's Solution Center. Courses dropped during this period will appear on the transcript with a "W" notation.

Tuition and Fee Schedule

Tuition and fees are established each year in late spring. Current tuition and fees will be posted on the Internet at weber.edu/bursar/TuitionFee_Tables.html.

HB248 Tuition Disclosure 2012-2013

Full-time undergraduate resident students at Weber State University paying a semester of tuition and fees amount of $2,384 contribute an estimated 59% of the full cost of instruction of $4,041. The remaining support of $1,657 is provided by state tax funds.

Tuition and Fee Assessment

Weber State University does not drop courses for non-payment or non-attendance. Students are responsible for dropping courses they do not plan to attend. Tuition and fees will not be waived for nonattendance. Once registered, each student is obligated to pay for their courses unless the student has dropped courses or the student completes a total withdraw from school during the 100% refund period. If a student drops or completely withdraws from school after the 100% refund period, the student is obligated to pay tuition and fees according to the current semester refund schedule. Also, a student must pay for or drop courses by the payment deadline to avoid late fees and interest. (See Withdrawal for further information.)

Tuition and Fees for Online and Independent Study Courses

Course (Lab) Fees

Some courses require additional fees for materials and/or resources.

Rentals and Deposits

Rentals and/or deposits are required on certain items and are paid to the Cashier. Any applicable refunds must be obtained from the Cashier prior to June 30.

Surcharge

In 2003 the Utah State Board of Regents passed a policy designed to encourage students to make reasonable progress toward completion of degree requirements. The policy states that students who exceed 135% of the credits required for completion of their baccalaureate degree will be charged the full cost of instruction. For example, a student whose program of study requires 126 semester credit hours will be allowed a maximum of 170 semester hours in which to complete degree requirements ($126 \text{ credits} \times 1.35 = 170 \text{ credit hours}$). Any work beyond the allowed 135% will be charged at the full cost of instruction.

Credit hours that do not count toward the 170 hours are concurrent enrollment, advanced placement, and credit by examination. Individuals are also exempt from the surcharge if:

- the credits are necessary for the student to complete the student's program of study; and the excess credits are a result of circumstances where a substantial number of credits from a transferring institution could not be applied to the program of study;
- the excess credits are a result of a reasonable enhancement of the student's major by the addition of a minor or emphasis to the program of study; or

- the excess credits are the result of a re-entry into the educational system by a student who may have accumulated a large number of credits, or even completed degrees, but where employment requirements obligate his or her return to college.

More information is available by contacting the Cashier's Office at 801-626-8006 (SC 209).

Agreement to Pay Tuition Charges

When a student registers for courses at Weber State University the student agrees to the terms of the "Agreement to Pay Tuition Charges." The agreement states:

In consideration of the University's allowing me to register for courses, thus incurring the attendant costs to the University, both direct and indirect, I promise to pay Weber State University (WSU), Ogden, Utah, tuition and fees (principal) assessed to me for courses for which I have registered by the published payment due date for each semester. Also, I agree to pay for any additional fees and interest charges that are assessed to my account each semester. I hereby agree to pay a late payment fee of $40 if my account balance is not paid by the published payment due date, together with interest at the rate of 12% per annum on the unpaid balance. In the event I default on this agreement and it becomes necessary to place this account for collection, I also agree to pay collection fees, not to exceed 50.00% of the original principal balance, plus any court and/or attorney fees resulting from the enforcement of this agreement. Any collection costs stated above are in addition to the principal, fees and interest due on my account. In the event of default of any of the terms of this agreement, I hereby give to the WSU Controller, or his/her designee, Power of Attorney to apply all monies due me from WSU to any delinquent portion of this note until the principal, fees, interest and costs are paid in full. I agree that WSU may repay my account balance from any TITLE IV funds due me. I understand that the principal amount is calculated based on my class-load each semester at WSU. All outstanding tuition account balances are considered qualified educational loans under I.R.C § 221 and are extended with the express understanding that future repayment shall be made to the university. I further understand that my acceptance of these terms represents my acknowledgement and acceptance of my tuition account balance qualifying as a qualified education loan under I.R.C. § 221, and as such, is exempt from discharge under federal bankruptcy code 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(8).

Billing Statement

Tuition and fees statements are available on the eWeber student portal. Electronic statements and up-to-date balances are available in the student account at any time. Students are responsible for viewing up-to-date balance or e-statements in the student account. It is the student's responsibility to make sure account balances are paid in-full and on-time. A paper billing statement will only be mailed at the student's request by sending an email to cashiers@weber.edu.

Payment Schedule

- Payment deadlines are listed on the Internet at weber.edu/bursar.
- Tuition and fees may be paid by cash, check VISA, DiscoverCard, MasterCard or American Express.
- Monthly payment plans are available to help students who are not able to pay in full when tuition is due. (See Monthly Payment Plan Option below.)

Late Payment Fee

A late payment fee will be assessed to all students who have not paid their tuition and fees in-full or have not signed up for a monthly payment plan (see weber.edu/bursar/Late_fees.html for the amount and schedule for assessment of the fee.) If a student has an outstanding balance after their financial aid or scholarships have been applied, the student is responsible to pay this amount by the payment deadline to avoid the late payment fee and interest charges. The late payment fee and interest are nonrefundable and will not be waived.

If a student changes his/her schedule by adding classes, the student has until Friday at 4:00 p.m. of that week to pay the balance or the late payment fee will be assessed to the student account. Students should check their account balance each time a change is made to his/her schedule to determine the new balance due.

Interest Assessment

Interest will begin the fourth week of the semester. The annual rate is 12%. A student will not be assessed interest as long as the student is in a Monthly Payment Plan that covers all tuition and fees and current on all payments. Interest on unpaid balances will be assessed in addition to the late payment fee.

Monthly Payment Plan Option

The Monthly Payment Plan is a program intended to help students who are not able to pay their account in full by the tuition and fee deadline. Instead of one large payment, tuition and fees are broken down into equal monthly payments. Enrollment in a plan is available at the time of registration prior to beginning of each semester. See weber.edu/bursar for details about monthly payment plans.

Personal Checks or eChecks

Personal checks or eChecks returned by a financial institution for any reason are subject to a service charge and may result in the withholding of student records and/or dropping of courses.

Delinquent Accounts-Collection Fees

Students with unpaid tuition and fees, room and board, parking fines, or other fees due to the University will have a hold placed on their records until such obligations are paid in full. The hold will prevent the student from registering for future semesters, viewing transcripts or grades, delay graduation, and limit use of the Wildcard and certain student services.

Unpaid accounts will be processed by University collections. A collection fee of ten percent of the outstanding balance will be assessed to the student. Interest and monthly collection fees will also be assessed on any unpaid balance. In the event additional collection efforts become necessary, WSU may refer a past due account to an outside collection agency. All delinquent accounts are subject to collection fees, interest, plus all court costs and reasonable attorney fees. The collection agency and/or WSU will report delinquent accounts to a credit reporting agency.

Third Party/Sponsored Payments

Students are responsible for ensuring that appropriate documentation for third party/sponsored payments is submitted to the main cashier's office prior to the start of classes each semester. Students must comply with the terms of the agreement and verify that all tuition and fees changes are paid by the sponsor agreement. It is the student's responsibility to verify that any course or tuition and fee changes will be paid by the sponsor and that these changes are reported to the accounts receivable office for proper processing. If the sponsor does not provide funding by the end of the semester, the student will be responsible for payment of tuition and fees. The account will be considered delinquent if unpaid at the end of the semester. (See Delinquent Accounts above.) Contact 801-626-6263 for information on how to submit vouchers or contracts.

Administrative Withdrawals

The University reserves the right to administratively withdraw a student from a current semester if a student has an unpaid tuition and fee balance from a prior semester or if the student provides a dishonored check or other payment to pay for tuition and fees. The prior semester courses will not be dropped or withdrawn.

Financial Petitions

Tuition and fee assessment is based on the registration date of the course and date of withdrawal from the course. The withdrawal dates are published on the Academic Calendar each semester. If, due to extenuating or for other acceptable circumstances, the student must drop a course after the published deadline, the student must complete the "Exception to University Policy-Tuition and Fee Assessment Petition" weber.edu/bursar/Petition.html and submit supporting documentation.

Tuition and fees are assessed according to approved tuition and fee tables. The assessment is based on the number of registered credit hours or liable hours for each student. For example, if the student signs up for 12 credit hours, he or she is liable for paying for 12 hours according to the tuition and fee table.

Deadlines for Filing Petition

The deadline for filing a petition is the last day of the semester of enrollment. The burden of proof rests with the student to submit documentation of circumstances that prevented the student from adhering to the University policies and procedures. For more information and forms refer to: weber.edu/bursar/Petition.html

Refunds and Reimbursements

Student fees and course fees are refunded based on the University refund schedule (see weber.edu/bursar). Late fees and withdrawal fees are nonrefundable. In most cases, if a credit card is used to pay for tuition and fees, refunds and residual funds will be credited to the credit card. Students may opt to have any refund sent electronically to a bank account of their choice by setting up a refund profile at weber.edu/bursar/erefunds.html. All other refunds will be mailed to the student. Admission fees and recording fees are nonrefundable. Refunds for dropped courses will be processed after the third week of class.

Financial Aid Withdrawals and Return of Title IV Funds

See Withdrawals and Return of Title IV Funds in the Financial Aid section.

Location: Shepherd Union, Suite 327

Website: weber.edu/CCEL

The Center for Community Engaged Learning at Weber State University facilitates both curricular and co-curricular community engaged learning experiences. The main mission of the center is to engage students, faculty and staff members in direct service, civic engagement, and community research to promote civic participation, build community capacity, and enhance the educational process. Community engaged learning can be facilitated through one of our three pathways: direct service, civic engagement and community research. Direct Service experiences often involve working directly with community residents to meet an immediate need. Examples of direct service include, but are not limited to: volunteering to serve meals at a homeless shelter, using academic knowledge to develop an electronic food-monitoring database for a food pantry, serving as a mentor or tutor in a local school or youth development program, cleaning up the banks of the Ogden River, or coaching a city youth sport. Civic engagement experiences often involve raising awareness about issues of public concern and working more systematically through both political and non-political processes to create change. Examples of civic engagement include, but are not limited to: attending organized discussions about pollution; community organizing; writing a letter to an elected official; engaging others in the process of deliberative democracy; or producing information about community issues. Community research experiences often involve gathering information with and for community organizations to solve a pressing community problem or create change. Examples of community research include, but are not limited to: community needs assessment survey; water quality or scientific assessment; or program evaluation for non-profit organizations. Regardless of the type of community engaged learning experience, students are expected to acquire four CEL outcomes through their experiences: civic knowledge, civic skills, civic values, and civic action. Student learning outcomes, definitions, and measurement rubrics can be found at www.weber.edu/CCEL.

Department of Automotive Technology

Department Chair: Scott Hadzik

Location: Computer & Automotive Engineering Building, Davis Campus

Telephone Contract: Jennifer Vesper 801-626-6579

Program Advisor: Jessica Slater jessicaslater.youcanbook.me/

Department Web Site: weber.edu/automotive

Professor: John Kelly; Associate Professor: Scott Hadzik; Instructors: Scott Holland, Blair Newbold, Jessica Slater

The Automotive Technology Department curriculum is a "2 + 2" design leading to an Associate of Applied Science degree in Automotive Service Technology and a Bachelor of Science degree in Automotive Technology.

Automotive Service Technology

Automotive Service Technology is a program offered under the Automotive Technology Department. Automotive Service Technology is the field of study dealing with diagnosis, service, and repair of automobiles and light trucks. Lab and classroom courses are oriented toward high levels of technical understanding, current developments such as electronic control systems and environmental issues, the development of the students' diagnostic capabilities, and proficiency with recommended service procedures. In addition to specific technical training, supporting courses provide for growth of interpersonal and other skills needed to advance within the automotive service industry.

There are three tracks available under the Automotive Service Technology Associate of Applied Science degree.

- General Motors Automotive Service Educational Program (ASEP) is a program with technical coverage specializing exclusively in current General Motors products.
- Automotive Technology Educational Program (ATEP) is a comprehensive training program covering all major manufacturers' products.
- Heavy Duty Truck Technology is an articulated program with Davis Applied Technology Center, specializing in current Mack and Volvo White products.

Additionally, an Institutional Certificate is offered that prepares students for entry level automotive technician positions in dealerships or at independent shops.

The Automotive Service Technology degree tracks are certified by the National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation (NATEF).

Partnerships with four of the world's largest automotive corporations-Chrysler, Ford, General Motors and Toyota-assure direct access to state-of-the-art automotive technology. To assure optimum functioning, individual program tracks may have limited enrollment. See department for details.

In addition to the above degree tracks, the Automotive program also has the manufacturer's training centers, listed above, located on campus allowing faculty and students access to the latest equipment, data, and vehicles.

Automotive Technology

Automotive Technology is a program offered under the Automotive Technology Department. The baccalaureate degree in Automotive Technology is designed to prepare graduates for employment in a wide variety of automotive related industries including field service operations, fleet management, and technical support activities. It will also prepare them to advance in organizations such as:

- Original Equipment Manufacturers
- Aftermarket Management
- Service/Parts Management and Marketing
- Advanced Vehicle Systems Technical Research and Support.

To cover the broad range of knowledge and skills that these different organizations require, the degree has two different tracks. They are as follows:

- Field Service Operations
- Advanced Vehicle Systems

Automotive Technology graduates will be technically competent and possess strong interpersonal skills. They will have the ability to communicate effectively, be able to solve problems, work in teams, and will have developed an understanding of the need for continued professional development. The Automotive Technology bachelor's degree is designed as a "2+2" program building upon associate degree graduates who have received a degree in automotive service technology, heavy duty truck technology, collision repair, diesel technology, or similar programs. Students who have completed their associate degrees in one of these programs will be admitted as juniors and can complete their baccalaureate degree within two years.

The Computer Science program offers an Associate of Applied Science Degree and a Bachelor of Science Degree in Computer Science. The nature of the curricula offers flexibility as a student may tailor their program of study to their interests and professional aspirations. The curricula is based on ABET suggested program outcomes and also provides a Customized Option for students seeking a second bachelor's degree or a minor in a different academic area. The program also offers a minor, a teaching minor, and a BIS concentration. A Game Development Certificate is also offered that consists of 15-16 credits that focus on game development and math and also requires a bachelor's degree in Computer Science to be completed as a pre or co-requisite.

The Computer Science program is a technical, scientific approach requiring a solid foundation in mathematics and physics. The program blends scientific and engineering principles implemented through actual, practical, and applications-oriented experience as well as the intellectual study of computing. It is designed to provide a sound fundamental understanding of logic and of digital computer organization as well as the interaction between hardware, software and the interconnection of system components. Also emphasized is software engineering which includes understanding operating systems and other software systems design including implementation of the theory of computing, analysis of algorithms, simulation, and knowledge-based systems. The objectives of the Computer Science program are to provide students with an education that will meet their academic and career goals as well as meeting the needs of local industries.

Construction and Building Sciences Department

Department Chair: Pieter van der Have

Location: WSU Davis D3, Room 310

Telephone Contact: Liz Hill 801-395-3427

Email: Parsoncmt@weber.edu

Professor: Steven Peterson; Associate Professors: Kristen Arnold, Jeremy Farner, Joseph Wolfe; Instructors: Ashley Badali, Russell Butler, Pieter van der Have, Jacie Johnson, Shauna Morris

Construction and Building Science is a field of knowledge that draws upon physics, chemistry, engineering, architecture, construction and the life sciences. Construction and Building Science attempts to work with models of buildings and structures as a system, applying empirical techniques to the effective solution of design and construction problems. More specifically, contemporary construction and building science is a broad discipline that is concerned with the full life cycle of buildings and engineering projects, including: policy (codes and standards), planning, design, construction, commissioning, facilities management, restoration and retrofit, preservation and conservation, and demolition (deconstruction) and recycling.

The Construction and Building Sciences Department offer degrees in Building Design and Construction, Interior Design, Construction Management and Facilities Management.

Parson Construction Management

The Parson Construction Management program teaches the processes, procedures and management techniques necessary to function as a "Professional Constructor". It is designed to prepare students for immediate professional level employment or further study by developing a cohesive, solid technical foundation bolstered by practical, hands-on experiences, at the same time providing the education necessary for lifelong learning in a changing world. The process of learning is emphasized, as well as accumulation of knowledge. The multi-disciplinary curriculum is composed of courses in the areas of construction science, construction practice, business, and management as well as general education. The program is accredited by the Weber State University Accreditation.

The Parson Construction Management curriculum is a "2+2" design facilitating articulation with programs in architecture, commercial building construction, design graphics, facilities, interior design, and other building design and construction-related degrees.

Facilities Management-Emphasis

The Construction Management Program-Facilities Management Emphasis prepares graduates to manage and maintain the physical facilities for companies. Facilities managers may be responsible for leading activities in all or parts of the following: managing operations and maintenance of buildings, physical plant and utility distribution systems, grounds upkeep, road and parking lot maintenance, snow removal; recycling and waste management, energy conservation, sustainability; long rang facility planning, remodeling of existing facilities and planning, design and construction of new facilities and systems; code compliance.

Building Design & Construction

The Building Design & Construction (BDC) degree prepares graduates to enter careers in the design, construction, operation or maintenance of the built environment. Graduates are prepared for careers in the building design, construction, testing, operation, and maintenance of building systems; they have the abilities to produce and utilize basic construction documents and to perform basic analysis and design of system components. Baccalaureate degree graduates will have the technical and managerial skills necessary for careers in which they will analyze and design systems, specify project methods and materials, perform cost estimates and analyses, and manage technical activities in support of building projects.

Interior Design

The four-year Interior Design degree provides student's academic preparation for employment in the design-build industry. Students develop skills in professional practice and sales, Auto CAD, Revit Architecture, drafting, sketching, rendering, space planning, specification of materials, building codes, history and theory. Drafting and technical skills are essential to the program of study. Students graduating with the Interior Design Professional Sales degree meet guidelines for the practice of residential and commercial interior design, are academically prepared to sit for the CKD (Certified Kitchen Design) exam, gain membership in professional organizations, become licensed, and after two years of experience in the field sit for the NCIDQ (National Council for Interior Design Qualification) exam. The Interior Design bachelor of science degree is accredited by the Council for Interior Design Accreditation (CIDA) and endorsed by the National Kitchen and Bath Association (NKBA).

Bachelor of Science

Building Design & Construction (BS)

The Building Design & Construction (BDC) program prepares graduates to enter careers in the design, construction, operation or maintenance of the built environment. Graduates are prepared for careers in the building design, construction, testing, operation, and maintenance of building systems; they have the abilities to produce and utilize basic construction documents and to perform basic analysis and design of system components. Baccalaureate degree graduates will have the technical and managerial skills necessary for careers in which they will analyze and design systems, specify project methods and materials, perform cost estimates and analyses, and manage technical activities in support of building projects.

The BDC program will allow students to prepare for job opportunities working for residential design firms and builders, commercial architectural design firms and contractors; trade contractors and engineering firms such as mechanical, electrical, and plumbing; civil engineering firms; and various other firms related to the construction of the built environment. It provides an alternative pathway for those interested in continuing their graduate education in various disciplines relating to the built environment.

Interior Design (BS)

The four-year Interior Design degree provides student's academic preparation for employment in the design-build industry.

Students develop skills in professional practice and sales, Auto CAD, Revit Architecture, drafting, sketching, rendering, space planning, specification of materials, building codes, history and theory. Drafting and technical skills are essential to the program of study.

In addition to classroom projects, students participate in various community service projects, interdisciplinary design charrettes, attend field trips, and participate locally in professional organizations such as ASID, IIDA and NKBA.

Students graduating with the Interior Design degree meet guidelines for the practice of residential and commercial interior design, are academically prepared to sit for the CKD (Certified Kitchen Design) exam, gain membership in professional organizations, become licensed, and after two years of experience in the field sit for the NCIDQ (National Council for Interior Design Qualification) exam. The Interior Design is accredited by the Council for Interior Design Accreditation (CIDA) and is endorsed by the National Kitchen and Bath Association (NKBA).

Because the practice of interior design is complex, technical, and demanding, this program provides students with the technical skills, design and sales skills necessary to compete in the profession.

Department of Manufacturing and System Engineering (M&SE) education focuses primarily on the aspects of science and engineering aimed at preparing graduates for practice in that portion of the technological spectrum closest to product improvement, industrial processes, and operational functions. The M&SE programs at Weber State prepare individuals for a wide variety of positions in industrial, manufacturing, production, product design and quality based business and industries. The study of engineering and engineering technology requires a knowledge of mathematical, scientific, and engineering principles in combination with a strong applications-orientation in support of engineering activities. The M&SE department offers a variety of AAS and BS degrees in the following engineering and engineering technology programs:

- Manufacturing Systems Engineering (BS) Manufacturing Engineering Technology (AAS, BS)
 - Emphasis:
 - Production Operations and Control
 - Welding
 - Plastics and Composites
- Product Design and Development: An Engineering Technology (AAS, BS)
- General Technology (AAS)
- Controls Technology (AAS)

The BS degrees in these programs are accredited by the Engineering Technology Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org>.

Manufacturing Systems (process) Engineering is the branch of Industrial and Systems engineering that addresses the analysis and design of systems involving the human interaction with machines or nature. Such systems are highly complex and require modeling of the variability introduced by the human element. Operations are optimized and made more robust by incorporating these models into the overall system design. The focus of the Bachelor of Science in Manufacturing Systems Engineering (MSE) is on the training of students in facility design and modeling / simulations, including material handling.

The Manufacturing Systems (process) Engineers is an eclectic professional that turn ideas into reality. They play key roles in the creation of almost every single product that you see or use, from biomedical to computers, from sport equipment to aerospace. The challenges of creating new processes and using new materials to meet future needs, relieving human drudgery by automating dangerous and onerous production processes, and forming and leading teams of engineering experts are all examples of a few of the numerous opportunities for which the Manufacturing Systems Engineering Program prepares its students.

The Weber State Manufacturing Engineering Technology program has long been recognized as one of the outstanding manufacturing technology programs in the country. Students may choose among three emphasis areas; Production Operations and Control, Welding, or Plastics and Composites. The Production Operations and Control emphasis area is designed to prepare the student for professional employment in industry by giving them fundamental knowledge and skills in a broad range of manufacturing disciplines, manufacturing processes and automation. These include process selection and planning, tool and machine design, material selection and treatment, programmable logic controllers, mechatronics, robotics, Six Sigma methods and tools in manufacturing, and lean manufacturing. State-of-the-art laboratories give the students hands-on experiences with CNC machine tools, robotics, programmable logic controllers, systems integration and the latest in a variety of CAD/ CAM systems. Yearlong required senior projects have included industrial equipment, drones, crash simulators for the Utah Highway Patrol, electric vehicles, innovative products, computer integrated manufacturing cells and many fun projects that help students gain confidence in their abilities while gaining additional insight and skills in both teamwork and human relations.

The Manufacturing Engineering Technology Welding Emphasis is designed to produce welding engineering technology graduates that are involved in the concept, design, engineering, and metallurgy of weldments and implementation of welding processes in any manufacturing or technical industry. The program has six main areas of study: welding and manufacturing, design and structural, metallurgical, quality assurance, electrical, and management. Courses are designed to give students the background to solve welding related issues in a variety of industry settings. Students will learn how to set up welding quality systems with procedures and qualifications. Most classes have labs where students receive hands on training to complement the classroom instruction. Students complete a senior project with a team that brings together their experience and education.

The Manufacturing Engineering Technology Plastics and Composite Emphasis prepares students for professional employment in the plastic/composite industry. Students will learn firsthand about the complex interdependence between plastic/composite process, materials, tooling, and part design. The design portion of the emphasis will provide the knowledge and skills required to fulfill a number of career roles that focus on the product development process, which includes plastic part design. Another phase of this education delves into the differences between the many types of plastics as well as the properties which differentiate plastics from other materials. This emphasis will also expose the students to a wide variety of tooling from the many plastic disciplines. This includes injection, thermoforming, blow molding, extrusion dies and high/low tech composite molds. This exposure provides the students with a keen understanding of the function, construction, and multi-component interactions involved in well-constructed plastics tooling.

The Product Design and Development program prepares students to develop product design and development drawings. 3D models, reports, presentations, technical illustrations, interactive multimedia, and animations for industry. Students will develop their graphical skills, techniques, concepts, and management skills through exercises and projects. They will work in mechanical, electrical, and structural disciplines. Students will use calculators, computers, handbooks, and engineering reference materials while applying various mathematical concepts from geometry, algebra, and trigonometry.

Associate of Pre-Engineering

Pre-Engineering (APE)

- Grade Requirements: A minimum overall GPA of 2.00 is required.
- Credit Hour Requirements: A minimum of 57 credit hours is required. A minimum of 20 hours in residence (for transfer students).
- Program Code: 8042APE
- CIPC: 140101

The Associate of Pre-Engineering (APE) degree at Weber State University offers the first two years of a professional engineering curriculum. The degree is designed to prepare students for transfer into an engineering program at other universities in Utah, or throughout the United States, that offer four-year engineering degrees. Because many pre-engineering graduates will transfer to the University of Utah or Utah State University, the WSU Pre-Engineering program has official transfer agreements with these two schools.

In planning a program of study, students should be aware that most pre-engineering courses have mathematics and science prerequisites and that improper scheduling of courses can lengthen the time required to complete the degree. Students should also be aware that requirements may vary according to the university to which the student wishes to transfer. Students are therefore strongly encouraged to meet with the Pre-Engineering coordinator prior to beginning their program.

The Associate of Pre-Engineering degree has fewer general education credit hours than the Associate of Science (AS) degree. Therefore, in order for a student to obtain a Bachelor of Science (BS) degree in engineering, he or she will have to take additional general education courses at WSU and/or the receiving university. Alternatively, a student may earn the AS degree, but this degree may take longer than the APE degree because it contains not only pre-engineering courses but also a full complement of general education courses. The AS degree has the potential benefit, however, of satisfying all the general education requirements at either the University of Utah or Utah State University.

Advisement

All Pre-Engineering students are strongly encouraged to meet with the Pre-Engineering coordinator at the beginning of the program and at least once annually for course and program advisement. Pre-Engineering students are also encouraged to obtain advisement from the applicable engineering department at the receiving university.

Admission Requirements

Declare your program of study (see Enrollment Services and Information). No special admission or application requirements are needed for this program. However, students entering the Pre-Engineering program are expected to have taken college preparatory mathematics and physical science courses in high school. The standard entry level mathematics course for pre-engineering majors is MATH 1210 - Calculus I. Mechanical Engineering is the branch of engineering that deals with the design and development of mechanical devices and systems across a wide spectrum of industries such as transportation, aerospace, biotechnology, electronics, robotics, power generation, renewable energy, environmental control and manufacturing. The Mechanical Engineering Program offers courses in engineering mechanics, materials, thermal-fluid sciences, instrumentation and measurements and manufacturing. In the senior year, students complete a two-semester capstone project that integrates their course work. The program prepares graduates to enter engineering industry or to pursue graduate studies in the discipline.

Mission Statement:

Educate and prepare Mechanical Engineering students for successful careers. This is accomplished by the program educational objectives.

Program Educational Objectives

1. Be employed in an engineering or other physical science/technology field in a position that utilizes the curriculum knowledge and skills developed in the Mechanical Engineering program.
2. Use their mechanical engineering education as a stimulus for personal and professional growth to pursue advanced degrees in engineering or other fields.
3. Engage students in activities to produce graduates who communicate and work effectively and ethically with people of diverse backgrounds.
4. Be independent and critical thinkers who identify problems and develop effective solutions through creativity, and the application of knowledge.

ABET ME Student Outcomes are:

1. An ability to identify, formulate, and solve complex engineering problems by applying principles of engineering, science, and mathematics.
2. An ability to apply engineering design to produce solutions that meet specified needs with consideration of public health, safety, and welfare, as well as global, cultural, social, environmental, and economic factors.
3. An ability to communicate effectively with a range of audiences.
4. An ability to recognize ethical and professional responsibilities in engineering situations and make informed judgments, which must consider the impact of engineering solutions in global, economic, environmental, and societal contexts.
5. An ability to function effectively on a team whose members together provide leadership, create a collaborative and inclusive environment, establish goals, plan tasks, and meet objectives.
6. An ability to develop and conduct appropriate experimentation, analyze and interpret data, and use engineering judgment to draw conclusions.
7. An ability to acquire and apply new knowledge as needed, using appropriate learning strategies.

Enrollment and Graduation

With this new four-year mechanical engineering program, the current annual student enrollment for the 19-20 year is 243 with the program graduating three students so far. It is expected within a couple of years the graduation rate will substantially increase based on enrollment data.

The Department of Electrical & Computer Engineering houses three academic programs- Computer Engineering, Electrical Engineering and Electronics Engineering Technology.

Computer Engineering is the branch of engineering that integrates the fields of electrical engineering and computer science. Computer engineers use computer hardware and software to solve engineering problems. They are trained in computer architecture, embedded systems, software design, data structures, hardware interfacing, and hardware/software integration. The Computer Engineering program offers courses in basic circuitry, microelectronics, embedded systems, algorithms, data structures, and signal processing. An internship, which gives students engineering work experience, is also part of the program. In the senior year, students complete a two-semester capstone project that integrates their course work. The program prepares graduates to enter engineering industry or pursue advanced studies in the discipline.

Electrical Engineering is the branch of engineering that deals with the design and development of electronic devices and systems such as computers, telecommunications and controls. The Electrical Engineering Program offers courses in basic analog and digital circuits, microelectronic systems, electromagnetics, embedded systems, and signal processing. An internship, which gives students engineering work experience, is also part of the program. In the senior year, students complete a two-semester capstone project that integrates their course work. The program prepares graduates to enter engineering industry or pursue advanced studies in the discipline.

Electronics Engineering Technology provides an applications-oriented education and prepares graduates to make significant contributions in technology-based career fields. The program prepares students to incorporate computer and electronic systems in solving engineering, technology, science, and manufacturing problems.

The Electrical & Computer Engineering Department offers both Bachelor of Science (BS) and Master of Science (MS) degrees in Electrical Engineering and Computer Engineering. The department also offers an Associate of Applied Science (AAS) and Bachelor of Science degrees in Electronics Engineering Technology along with a minor.

College of Science

Dr. Andrea Easter-Pilcher, Dean

The College of Science provides quality education in the natural sciences and mathematics. The college offers majors and minors in seven departments (Botany, Chemistry, Earth and Environmental Science, Mathematics, Microbiology, Physics, and Zoology). The college also supports students through its Developmental Mathematics Program. The departments and programs of the College of Science support professional and graduate school preparatory programs, and contribute significantly to the general education of students by improving scientific understanding of the natural world and quantitative literacy. Education is provided through formal classes, laboratory and field experiences, and undergraduate research projects. Student learning is also supported by departmental clubs and professional preparatory organizations. The college promotes science and mathematics teaching through the Center for Science and Mathematics Education, and community outreach through such facilities as the Layton P. Science and Mathematics Programs, offered as both majors and minors allow students to pursue in-depth study in the science discipline of one's choice. They also allow one to experience a more diverse education through broader study outside of the sciences. Graduates in the sciences and mathematics are able to find employment in a variety of entry-level positions directly related to their major discipline. They are also able to move into graduate school or professional programs. Our graduates possess the broad liberal arts educational background and depth of expertise for significant career ladder movement in their discipline fields. They also have the breadth of knowledge and skills to exercise unique job mobility to become entrepreneurs and pioneer new career directions.

Pre-professional Programs are designed for students interested in specific professional careers requiring additional education at professional schools elsewhere. Weber State University has an excellent record of graduates being admitted into a wide range of professional school programs.

Professional Teacher Preparation Programs are designed to meet the needs of students seeking certification to teach in elementary and secondary schools. The Center for Science & Mathematics Education coordinates with the Jerry and Vickie Moyes College of Education to provide opportunities for students to investigate science teaching careers. There are many excellent career opportunities for graduates with teaching majors or minors in science or mathematics.

Technical Education Programs are offered to meet the needs of individuals seeking vocational and technical preparation required for skilled job-entry or reentry employment, as well as for career updating and occupational enhancement. Currently Associate of Science and Associate of Applied Science degrees are offered for Biotechnician training and Chemical Technician training, respectively, and Institutional Certificates are offered for Biotechnician training, Chemical Technician training, and Geomatics.

Students planning to major or minor in the College of Science should contact the appropriate department for assistance in planning their program. The details of the requirements for all majors and minors are listed within the respective departments. Students completing the teaching majors, minors, or emphases will also work closely with the Center for Science & Mathematics Education and the Jerry and Vickie Moyes College of Education.

The Planetarium, featuring a 30-foot hemispherical dome, is used for instruction in undergraduate astronomy classes. It is also a science education facility featuring programs of interest to elementary students, secondary students, and the general public. For the general public, a program featuring some topic of current interest in astronomy is given one evening a week. Any teacher wishing instructional materials or wanting to set up an appointment for a class visit should contact the Director of the Planetarium, 801-626-6871.

Pre-Professional Programs

For information see weber.edu/premedicalprofessionalprograms or call the Pre-Medical Professional Programs office 801-626-7755.

Students pursuing one of the following programs should satisfy the pre-professional requirements while completing a bachelor's degree. Students should work closely with both their pre-professional advisor and their academic major advisor. Since course loads are typically heavy, and requirements and application procedures vary among post-graduate programs, students should plan their academic strategies early and with full information.

Advisement

Students should be familiar with requirements in the Weber State catalog and consult with the pre-professional advisor and an advisor in their major department.

Department of Botany and Plant Ecology

Department Chair: Sue Harley

Location: Tracy Hall Science Center, Room 416

Telephone: 801-626-6174

Professors: Sue Harley, Barbara Wachocki; Associate Professor: Heather Root; Assistant Professors: James Cohen, Bridget Hilbig, Katharina Schramm

While plants have intrigued and delighted people for thousands of years, they still remain undervalued and too little appreciated. We see a faint connection between plants and our basic needs for food, shelter, clothing, and energy, but only in a rather limited way. Remote connections are made, if at all, between the history of exploration; present-day social, economic, and political conditions; and access to plants and plant products. Interest and understanding of plants is becoming much more intense. During the last few decades we have seen an unprecedented increase in the variety of plants and plant products available in our markets as the popularity of ethnic cuisines has grown. Also, worldwide, people are becoming increasingly aware of sound nutrition and the role plants play in our general health. We now appreciate plants as reservoirs of untold numbers of pharmaceuticals important in our war on diseases. These interests are stimulating our collective concerns about understanding the past, present, and future uses of plants. Recently we have begun to address our most serious problems, such as the loss of ecosystem integrity and habitats for animals dependent upon vegetation. This we have done through increased understanding of plants. We now know how valuable plants are in maintaining the health and stability of the global environment and that in its survival is the survival of the human species.

Botany is the study of all aspects of plants, including systematics, morphology, diversity, metabolism, and ecology. Through a study of plants, students gain an understanding and an appreciation of life at the cellular, organismal, population, and community levels of organization. The study of Botany can lead to a variety of professional careers, including soil science, forestry, range management, biotechnology, plant breeding, horticulture, environmental science, natural medicine, and teaching.

The Botany Department at Weber State University offers undergraduate training in all areas of botany. Students who are interested in specializing in a particular area are encouraged to meet with an advisor. Students who are interested in Field Botany can earn a certificate of proficiency in field botany while working on their Botany (BS) or as a stackable credential with a Biology (AS).

The Botany Department cooperates with the departments of Microbiology and Zoology in offering a Biology Composite Teaching (BS) Major for individuals who are interested in teaching Biology at the secondary school level and a Biology (AS).

The Botany Minor provides valuable support for students majoring in a variety of other fields, including anthropology, geosciences, and zoology.

Herbarium

The Herbarium of Weber State University is housed in the Tracy Hall Science Center, room TY345. It contains more than 28,000 preserved plant specimens, primarily collected from Utah and the Western United States. This collection serves as an important reference for students, faculty, biologists, and all others who need to know the identity of plants or learn something about their geographic distributions and ecological associations.

Interdisciplinary Programs

The Botany Department participates in the interdisciplinary Urban and Regional Planning Emphasis Program. Students who wish to enroll in this program should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of the catalog.) The Department of Botany also contributes courses and faculty expertise to the interdisciplinary Environmental Science major (BS) sponsored by the College of Science.

Institutional Certificate

Field Botany Certificate of Proficiency

The Certificate of Proficiency in Field Botany provides 24 semester credit hours in botany, the minimal botany course work needed for federal job code 0430, botanist. This certificate can be earned as a stand alone certificate, as a +1 with the Biology AS, or while working on a Botany BS. An additional 5 credit hours in botany and an appropriate mathematics course are required beyond the requirements for the botany minor.

- Program Prerequisite: Not required.
- Grade Requirements: Students completing a certificate in Field Botany must have a minimum grade of "C" in all courses used toward the certificate (a grade of "C-" is not acceptable).
- Credit Hour Requirements: A minimum of 27-28 credit hours is required for the certificate.
- Program Code: 6045CP
- CIPC: 260301

Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences

Department Chair: Dr. Marek Matyjasik

Location: Tracy Hall Science Center, Room 338

Telephone Contact: Marianne Bischoff 801-626-7139

Professors: Richard Ford, Michael Hernandez, David Matty, Marek Matyjasik, Adolph Yonkee; Assistant Professors: Elizabeth Balgord, Carie Frantz, Ryan Frazier, Caitlin Tems; Lab Manager: Sara Summers

Earth scientists (also called geoscientists) investigate Earth, our planetary home, including its origin, composition, dynamic processes, and evolution over geologic time. Earth science knowledge is vital to society, as we explore for natural resources, mitigate the impacts of natural disasters, and work to protect the quality of the environment for future generations. Environmental scientists are problem solvers; they use multi-science approaches to investigate and address a wide variety of environmental issues. Both Earth and environmental scientists rely heavily of geospatial technologies (GIS, remote sensing, drones) to study and model Earth processes and features. This is an important and exciting time to be involved in Earth, environmental, and geospatial science careers.

The Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences offers bachelor's degrees in Geology, Applied Environmental Geoscience, and Earth Science Teaching, and supports the Physical Science Composite Teaching degree. The department offers minors in Geology, Geospatial Studies, and Earth Science Teaching. A certificate of proficiency in Geospatial Analysis is also available.

Every citizen should have a basic knowledge of how our planet, including its climate system, works. Thus, the department offers a wide variety of physical science (PS) general education courses.

Interdisciplinary Programs

The Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences contributes courses and faculty expertise to the interdisciplinary Environmental Science major (BS) sponsored by the College of Science. In addition, the department participates in the interdisciplinary Environmental Studies Minor Program and the Urban and Regional Planning Emphasis Program. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should contact the program coordinator, who will help them select a combination of courses to fit their particular educational goals. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of the catalog.)

The Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences uses the course prefix GEO because "geo", from the Greek, means Earth.

Placement in Mathematics Courses

To prevent delay of graduation, all students requiring developmental courses should begin those courses immediately and stay registered in mathematics until completing a Quantitative Literacy course. Developmental Math courses provide foundational skills necessary for most college level courses. See Math Placement for details on our placement options and Choose Your Math Path for course options.

Course Delivery Options

Individual students have individual learning needs. The Developmental Math Program offers three types of courses to meet student learning needs.

Inquiry & Exploration Learning (IEL) - Students explore and solve real-world problems collaboratively in class with instructor guidance.

Homework is completed online. In-class workbook and tests are on paper. Classes taught in this format: MATH 0950, MATH 0970, and MATH 1010.

Mastery-Based Learning (MBL) - Students take notes from videos or the textbook before class and collaboratively work on homework in class with instructor guidance. The videos, textbook, homework, quizzes, and tests are all online. Classes taught in this format: MATH 0950, MATH 0990, and MATH 1010.

Online Learning (ONL) - Online classes are mastery-based learning and completed entirely online with no face-to-face class meetings. All materials are online. Computerized quizzes and tests must be proctored in an approved location. Classes taught in this format: MATH 0950, 0990, and 1010.

From data mining to forensics, mathematics is the language of choice for an ever increasing number of disciplines. The scientist, the engineer, the actuary, the financial planner - all use algebra, geometry, calculus and statistics. But also the voter needs to understand these concepts, albeit at a less advanced level, to reach informed decisions about a multitude of issues from utility rates and retirement saving to information security and global warming.

The Department of Mathematics offers a variety of courses (from general interest to advanced levels of applicability), two minors, departmental honors, and three majors. The Mathematics major may be the best choice for someone planning to go directly to graduate school; the Applied Mathematics major prepares one for a job that uses mathematics; the Mathematics Teaching major prepares students to be teachers of mathematics in elementary through high school.

Prerequisites

Since each course in mathematics requires a working knowledge of principles from prerequisite courses, students are required to earn a "C" grade in each prerequisite course before registering for the next course.

Placement

Weber State University students will be placed into mathematics courses by the following procedure.

A. To enroll in mathematics courses MATH 1030, MATH 1040, MATH 1050, MATH 1060, or MATH 1080 a student must have, within the past 24 months, either:

1. Received a Math ACT score of 23 or above

or

2. Scored sufficiently high on a placement exam at the WSU testing center,

or

3. Completed the prerequisite course with a grade of "C" or higher.

Students who score below 23 on the Math ACT may be placed into developmental courses. See the math placement standards listed in the WSU Core General Education Requirements.

B. To enroll in mathematics courses numbered 1210 through 2210, a student must have, within the past 24 months, either:

1. Obtained the appropriate AP Calculus score described below:
 - a. Five on the BC test places the student in MATH 2210 or higher
 - b. Three or four on the BC test places the student in MATH 1220
 - c. Four or five on the AB test places the student in MATH 1220
 - d. Three on the AB test places the student in MATH 1210

or

2. Scored sufficiently high on a placement exam at the WSU testing center.

or

3. Completed the prerequisite course(s) with a grade of "C" or higher.

Failure to comply with this policy will normally result in the cancellation of the student's math course registration.

It is recommended that students have their programs (majors and minors) approved before registering for upper division courses.

Microbiology is the study of microorganisms (bacteria, viruses, algae, fungi, and protozoa) including their structure, metabolism, distribution, and ecological relationships. Knowledge gained by microbiologists leads to a better understanding of molecular-level life processes and to beneficial applications in agriculture, industry, and medicine. The field is expanding, with special emphasis being given to genetic engineering, biotechnology, cell culture, disease and the immune response, production and storage of food, research and development and quality assurance of industrial products, disposal and detoxification of wastes, and the monitoring of environmental quality.

Interdisciplinary Programs

The Department of Microbiology contributes courses and faculty expertise to the interdisciplinary Environmental Science major (BS) sponsored by the College of Science. In addition, the department participates in A.S. Biology.

Pre-Professional

Microbiology (BS), Medical Microbiology Emphasis

Microbiology majors pursuing this emphasis should consult the appropriate advisor. The courses listed below are for the Bachelors of Science (BS) Degree in Microbiology with an emphasis in Medical Microbiology. The total number of credits required for the emphasis are the same as those required for the Microbiology degree, but are more specifically defined. An emphasis is not a major. Your major will be Microbiology with an emphasis in Medical Microbiology.

Students considering application to medical, dental, veterinary, physical therapy, optometry, and pharmacy schools should consult the beginning of the College of Science section of this catalog. Furthermore, they should meet with the advisors of these programs, each of whom is listed in that section. The Department of Microbiology offers lower and upper level courses that provide superb training for examinations such as the Medical College Admissions Test (MCAT), as well as medical school courses. Students should meet with the appropriate advisor for specific course suggestions. For information see <https://www.weber.edu/premedicalprofessionalprograms> Medical schools do not accept AP or CELP credits in English, Math, or Science courses. Students interested in Graduate School should discuss their plans with the major advisor.

Microbiology Major

- Program Prerequisite: Not required.
- Minor: Not required. However, Microbiology majors will meet the requirements for a minor in Chemistry. If desired for another program, a Microbiology Minor is offered. Please see "Microbiology Minor" for requirements.
- Grade Requirements: An overall GPA of 2.00 or higher in Microbiology courses is required for this major in addition to an overall GPA of 2.00 or higher. Also refer to the General Grade Requirements for graduation.
- Credit Hour Requirements: A total of 120 credit hours is required for graduation; a minimum of 71 credits is required within the major. A total of 40 upper division credit hours is required (courses numbered 3000 and above).
- Program Code: 6015BS and emphasis 6042 (Medical Microbiology)
- CIPC: 260502

Advisement

All Microbiology students are encouraged to meet with a faculty advisor at least annually for course and program advisement. Call 801-626-6949 for more information or to schedule an appointment. (Also refer to the Department Advisor Referral List.) Please note, careful planning is essential as most courses have prerequisites and some upper division courses are only offered in one semester.

Use Grad MAPs to plan your degree. They can be found at <https://apps.weber.edu/gradmaps>

Emphasis Option for Bachelor of Integrated Studies

Microbiology (BIS)

BIS students that wish to include Microbiology as one of their emphasis areas should recognize that they should have a clear goal for their BIS program and capstone project. Students need to gain approval of courses for the emphasis from a Microbiology advisor. Because Microbiology research often involves laboratory experiments, students should begin discussing their capstone project with a faculty member a year in advance. They will then work with that faculty mentor, in coordination with the other emphasis mentors, to develop the experiments, methods, and schedule for the project. The student is responsible for securing funding for the supplies needed for their project.

- Program Prerequisite: Students seeking a BIS with an emphasis in Microbiology must complete CHEM 1210 PS - Principles of Chemistry I and CHEM 1220 - Principles of Chemistry II as prerequisites for upper division Microbiology courses in addition to the credits required for Microbiology.
- Grade Requirements: A minimum grade of "C" must be achieved in all coursework to satisfy BIS degree requirements.
- Credit Hours Requirements: A minimum of 18 credit hours is required in Microbiology, at least one course should be at the 4000 level.
- Program Code: 6015
- CIPC: 260502

Department of Physics

Department Chair: Colin Inglefield

Location: Tracy Hall Science Center, Room 302

Telephone: Nereyda Hesterberg 801-626-6163

Web Site: weber.edu/physics

Professors: John Armstrong, Colin Inglefield, Adam Johnston, Stacy Palen, Daniel Schroeder, John Sohl, Walther Spjeldvik; Associate Professors: Michelle Arnold; Assistant Professors: Jonathan Cornell, Kristin Rabosky; Visiting Professor: Kelly Spirito

Physics is the study and application of the fundamental laws of nature, including the laws of motion, gravity, electromagnetism, heat, and microscopic interactions. These laws govern the behavior of objects at all scales, from the smallest subatomic particles to the entire observable universe. In between, physicists study nuclear reactions, the interaction of atoms with light, properties of materials, the chaotic dynamics of fluids, and the evolution of stars and galaxies, among many other applications.

Our courses in physics introduce all of the most important fundamental laws and many of their applications. Equally valuable, however, are the skills that students develop in these courses, from analytical thinking and problem solving to experimental design and interpretation. Majoring in physics can thus prepare a student for a variety of careers in research, education, business, industry, and government.

The Department offers three major programs: Physics, Applied Physics, and Physics Teaching. The Physics major places emphasis on understanding nature at the deepest possible level, and offers options that emphasize fundamental theoretical physics, astrophysics, computational physics, and physics of materials. Each of these options provides a strong foundation for graduate work. The Applied Physics major places more emphasis on physical phenomena and hands-on experience. Thus, it is more suitable for those planning to go either directly into industrial employment or into graduate programs in certain applied fields. The Physics Teaching major is designed specifically for those planning to teach physics at the secondary school level.

Students who are majoring in other disciplines are encouraged to consider a minor in physics, which includes a year of introductory physics plus eight credit hours of additional physics courses. These electives may be chosen to emphasize basic theory, experimental techniques, or applied subfields such as optics and astrophysics.

Department of Zoology

Department Chair: Ron Meyers

Location: Tracy Hall Science Center, Room 402

Website: www.weber.edu/zoology

Telephone Contact: 801-626-6165

Professors: Nicole Berthélémy, John Cavitt, Brian Chung, Jonathan Clark, Christopher Hoagstrom, Jon Marshall, Ron Meyers, John Mull, Michele Skopec, Barbara Trask; Assistant Professors: Rebecka Brasso, Elizabeth Sandquist, Ezgi Yesilyurt; Instructor: Brian Pilcher

Zoology is the study of animals. It includes a tremendous diversity of subdivisions and approaches. These range from using electron microscopy to study cells, to field examinations of natural populations. Some zoologists focus their studies on a specific group of animals; others specialize on problems or processes, such as those in physiology or genetics, which are common to many groups. Zoologists have made many important contributions to our understanding of the natural world. Furthermore, they benefit humankind through their work in areas such as medicine and environmental conservation.

Although our majors pursue several tracks, many are involved in pre-medical professional training. We have an excellent record of placing students in the finest medical, dental, veterinary, and physical therapy programs. The faculty strongly encourage majors to pursue guided research, particularly through the department's thesis program.

All students are urged to consult with the department early in their education. Arrangements can then be made for the student to be matched with an appropriate advisor who can offer course and career suggestions.

DNA Laboratory

The Department of Zoology maintains a DNA Laboratory on the first floor of the Science Laboratory building in the College of Science. It is a modern facility with state-of-the-art equipment for DNA isolation and analysis. The laboratory is used for student course work, faculty-supervised student research, and faculty research.

Interdisciplinary Programs

The Zoology Department participates in the interdisciplinary Neuroscience Minor and the Urban and Regional Planning Emphasis programs. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of this catalog.)

Master of Criminal Justice Program

Program Director: Bradford Reynolds

Telephone Contact: 801-626-6151

Who Should Apply

The program is designed for criminal justice and social service professionals who wish to continue their education.

Program Description

The Master of Science Degree in Criminal Justice is designed to provide post-baccalaureate education to criminal justice professionals and traditional students who have not yet begun a career in criminal justice. The primary goal of the program is to develop in graduates the ability to analyze, comprehend, and explore the complex problems confronting the criminal justice system. The program emphasizes theory, research and administration in the criminal justice system. Students will be able to conceptualize the problems of crime and justice from social, cultural, economic, and political perspectives. In addition, the successful graduate will understand research methods and design as well as statistical strategies used to analyze social science research. Course work will also provide a foundation for those students desiring to pursue doctoral studies.

About the Faculty

The graduate faculty brings diverse backgrounds both in terms of education and professional experience. Faculty graduate degrees include Public Administration, Sociology, Criminal Justice, Psychology, and the Law. Past professional experiences among the faculty include law enforcement administration, prosecuting attorney, criminal defense attorney, probation officer, corrections officer, and forensic investigator. Faculty research interests cross the full spectrum of the justice system and include issues related to the police, courts, criminal procedures, adult and youth corrections.

About the Program

The Master of Science Degree in Criminal Justice is a fully on-line degree program that allows students the opportunity to continue their education from anywhere with active Internet service. Applications are accepted on a continuous basis and courses are offered every semester (fall, spring, and summer). In general, students should be able to complete their degree in as few as 12-16 months.

Geography is the study of the spatial organization, arrangement, function, movement, and interrelationships of phenomena on the surface of the earth. It is a science concerned with both physical and cultural phenomena and routinely interfaces with other disciplines in the natural sciences, social & behavioral sciences, humanities, business, and economics. With a global perspective and a robust geospatial toolkit (GIS, Satellite Imagery, Computer Mapping, GPS, and other Technologies.), the department prepares students to engage in the processes that create more sustainable environments and communities throughout the world.

Interdisciplinary Minors

The Department of Geography, Environment and Sustainability participates in the Asian Studies, Environmental Studies, Ethnic Studies, European Studies and Latin American Studies Minor Programs and the Urban and Regional Planning Emphasis Program. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of this catalog.)

Minor

Environmental Studies Minor

Coordinator: Dr. Alice Mulder

Location: SS 302

Telephone: 801-626-6198

The Environmental Studies Minor is an interdisciplinary degree that focuses on the work of science in human activity. The curriculum is rooted in science to ground factual knowledge. However, its trunk is solidly comprised of social science and humanities courses because they teach the application of science in policy-making, business decisions and historical precedent even as they call upon the arts for their expression and upon ethics in consideration of health and social justice issues. The minor reaches across campus because all disciplines play an essential role in shaping environmental thought.

Students will gain an appreciation for local, national and international environmental issues and problems as well as their potential solutions. They will develop a personal philosophy about the environment's role in their lives and their own ability to affect nature and their physical environment by making ethical choices.

- Grade Requirements: A grade of "C" or better is required for all courses.
- Credit Hour Requirements: A minimum of 25 credit hours is required, at least 15 of these must be upper division (numbered 3000 or higher).
- Program Code: 3063
- CIPC: 030103

Students must select courses from outside their major academic department whenever a choice is offered. Students are encouraged to consider diversity in curriculum selection.

Political Science

Political Science, in the broadest sense, is the study of politics particularly as it relates to governments and people. Political scientists study governments: The origins and preconditions for governments, the growth and evolution of governments, and the decline and conflict among governments. Political scientists also are interested in how governments are structured, how governments make decisions, the policies that result from political decisions and the consequences of these policies, and how governments manage societal and international conflicts. Political scientists also study people: Their values and positions on issues, their preferences among candidates, their support for public officials, and their appraisals of their government. True to their oldest academic traditions, political scientists retain their concern with the fundamental questions of how governments ought to be constituted, and how they can best serve their citizens.

The study of political science has value in several different ways. First, it contributes to a solid liberal arts education and preparation for citizenship. The Greek word "idiot" was used to refer to one who took no interest in the affairs of state. Today, no less than twenty centuries later, it is incumbent upon all useful citizens to learn something about the political system in which they will spend their lives. Educated people ought to know something of the nature of government even if they have no professional interest in political science.

Second, a degree in political science furnishes an excellent background for graduate study in political science, law, administration, business, and international relations. Political science helps students develop reasoning and analytical skills and build competence in oral and written expression. In addition, the department of political science requires students to acquire basic skills in statistical analysis and computer competency.

Third, there are some careers for which an extensive training in political science can be most useful. This is true especially for those planning to seek careers in higher education, the legal profession, state and local government, urban planning, the federal bureaucracy, journalism, the military, law enforcement, teaching, the civil service, or in any of the proliferating organizations that seek to monitor the political processes to influence content of public policy. Further, the training students receive in political science will be useful to students no matter what their ultimate career choices. The comprehensive career guide, Careers and the study of Political Science, is available from the department chair.

Internships

Internships are offered through the Political Science program and the Walker Institute of Politics and Public Service to provide students practical understanding of political processes in governmental organizations. Many students have received practical training and gained valuable knowledge by working with United States senators, members of Congress, and Utah State senators and representatives. Moreover, some students work as interns in City and County administrations and in the Utah Legal Services office in Ogden.

Pre-Law

The pre-law advisement program is designed to assist students in scheduling courses, in preparing for the law school admissions test, and in obtaining admission at one of the nationally recognized law schools. Data on the placement of graduates in law schools show the success and the immense value of the program to students. (Dr. Richard Price acts as the Pre-Law Advisor.)

Interdisciplinary Minors

The Political Science Department participates in the Asian Studies, Environmental Studies, European Studies, International Politics, Latin American Studies, Legal Studies, and Public Administration Minor Programs and the Urban and Regional Planning Emphasis Program. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of this catalog.)

Philosophy

The philosophy program offers courses that fall under three general categories: 1) Liberal Education: teaches the ideas of influential past and contemporary thinkers who have sought to understand the world and our experience of it. These ideas concern such topics as the nature of truth and reality, the limits of knowledge, standards of right and wrong, the experience of beauty, and world religions. 2) Methodology: emphasizes methods of sound practical reasoning, deductive logic, and language analysis. 3) Application: critically analyzes non-philosophical disciplines. For example, the philosophy of democracy analyzes the value assumptions behind democratic forms of government, while medical ethics seeks to identify and resolve dilemmas arising from conflicts between medical technology and the quality of life.

Department of Psychological Science

Department Chair: Aaron Ashley

Location: Social Science Building, Room 370

Telephone Contact: Mickey Cole 801-626-6247

Professors: Aaron Ashley, Eric Amsel, Azenett Garza, Joseph Horvat, Leigh Shaw; Associate Professors: Theresa Kay, Shannon McGillivray;

Assistant Professors: Sarah Herrmann, Cade Mansfield, Aminda O'Hare, Melinda Russell-Stamp; Instructors: Joel Skaria, Kathryn Sperry

The reasons for selecting a major, minor, or BIS emphasis in Psychology are to understand human behavior and to prepare for careers working or doing research with people. The program is designed for students to learn the core content of psychology and the foundational methods of psychological inquiry, as well as to have opportunities to integrate and apply psychological concepts.

Students majoring (including teaching majors) in Psychology have a program of study which provides training in the foundation in the field but allows for additional coursework in students' areas of interest. BIS students are trained in the conceptual and methodological foundation of the discipline while pursuing topics of interest in the field and related ones. Minors are free to pursue topics of interest to augment their major without the requirement that they acquire the discipline's foundational knowledge, skills, and abilities.

Psychology Curriculum, Requirements, and Policies

The Department of Psychological Science offers a 45 credit hour major, a 20 hour BIS emphasis, and an 18 credit hour minor. The curriculum provides classes addressing the conceptual, methodological, and statistical knowledge of the discipline (Core General Courses), the breadth of the discipline (Core Content Courses), and the integration and application of the discipline (Capstone Experience). Additional classes provide greater content area specialization (Elective Group A) and experiential or individualized instruction opportunities (Elective Group B).

All Psychology major (including teaching major) and minor students must meet with the designated Department Adviser as soon as they declare to plan their course of study. BIS students with an emphasis in psychology must additionally have their psychology courses approved by the designated Department Adviser (Advising Policy).

To count towards students' degree in Psychology, psychology courses must be passed with a grade of C or higher (Course Grade Policy).

Students declaring a Psychology major, minor, or BIS emphasis in a given catalog year can apply previously completed courses towards their degree (see Course Grade Policy) as long as the courses were taken no longer than 15 years prior to the date of declaration (Course Sunset Policy).

A student with a Psychology major, minor, or BIS emphasis must earn at least a 2.50 Psychology GPA for courses being used for graduation (Psychology GPA Policy).

Students may transfer undergraduate psychology credits from any other accredited institution of higher education toward their degree (see the Sunset Policy) by submitting a request through the University's Transfer Office. Courses taught in departments other than Psychology will not generally transfer as Psychology courses. Social Work

The goal of social work education at every level is for students to integrate the knowledge, skills, and values of the profession into a generalist practice framework. Social work education takes place in four year undergraduate and two-year graduate programs and leads to professional degrees at the baccalaureate and master's levels, respectively. These levels of education differ from each other in the level of knowledge and skill they expect students to synthesize in practice competence. These distinctions and the discretion provided by the tradition of academic freedom contribute to the desired uniqueness of each program. The Social Work program at Weber State University is accredited at the baccalaureate level by the Council on Social Work Education.

Social Work is a self-regulating profession with sanction from public, private and voluntary auspices. Through all its roles and functions and multiple settings, social work is based on knowledge and competence in evidence-based practice skills, and is guided by professional values and ethics. With its central focus on the transactions between people and their environments, social work uses research and theory from social, behavioral, and biological sciences as well as from social work practice itself, developing a unique perspective on the human condition.

Sound curriculum designs give the educational program the integrated focus inherent in the profession's enduring philosophical base. This ensures historical continuity and provides a stable framework from which to assess and incorporate practice innovations, emerging knowledge, and interdisciplinary exchanges. This combination of curricular stability and flexibility is essential if the program is to respond effectively to changing social forces and provide leadership in the profession's ongoing quest for progressive social change.

It is, therefore, essential that all professional social workers have in common knowledge, skills, and values that are generally transferable from one setting, population group, geographic area, or problem to another.

The Social Work program is designed to: (1) prepare students for generalist entry-level social work practice; (2) prepare students for graduate social work education; (3) prepare students to take the Social Service Worker licensing examination; (4) provide a liberal, interdisciplinary learning experience to help students in their understanding of and adjustment to living in a democratic society; and (5) provide continuing educational opportunities for baccalaureate and paraprofessional social welfare providers.

Gerontology

Gerontology is the multi-disciplinary study of the processes of aging from conception to death with special focus on the later life cycle and the problems associated with aging and the aged in society. Individuals working in the field of aging need a broad range of knowledge that transcends a single academic discipline. The Gerontology Program at Weber State University is designed to: (1) provide preparation for employment in both the private and public sector including working with senior citizen centers, nutrition programs, housing projects, long-term care facilities, state and local aging programs, Hospice, research, senior volunteer programs, job services, retirement planning and other age-related employment; (2) provide continuing education for job enrichment and preparation for persons already in the aging employment sector through consultation, workshops and academic courses to enhance career opportunities; (3) provide general education courses designed to assist students in understanding and dealing with older persons within their family and society at large; (4) encourage students to go directly into aging employment and/or to seek graduate degrees in gerontology or related fields leading to positions in national, regional and local aging network sectors.

Note: No new majors are being accepted in this program at this time. However, the minor, BIS emphasis, and non-degree certificate programs are active and available.

Bachelor of Arts

Social Work (BA)

Social Work Major Bachelor's Degree (BS or BA)

- Program Prerequisite: Must be accepted to the program (see Admissions Requirements described later in this section).
- Minor: The Social Work Major requires either: (a) the completion of a minor; or (b) a minor alternative. Minor requirements are found in the University catalog under the specific programs that offer them. As an alternative to a minor, a Social Work Major may choose to complete 18 credits (generally the equivalent of six courses) from a set of approved elective enrichment courses listed below.
- Grade Requirements: A grade of "C" or better is required in all courses toward and included in this major (a grade of "C-" is not acceptable). In addition, an overall GPA for these courses of 2.5 must be maintained. Also refer to the general grade requirements Degree Requirements. Students not meeting the minimum grade requirements for an individual Social Work course may repeat that course one (1) time before being dropped from the Social Work program. In the rare event a student is unable to complete SW 4860 and SW 4861 in the field agency they are originally placed, at the discretion of the field placement advisor, the student may request a new placement one (1) time only. Students at any time failing to meet the overall GPA of 2.5 will be given a probationary semester to raise their GPA to the minimum standard. Failure to comply with this policy will result in being dropped from the Social Work program.
- Credit Hour Requirements: A total of 120 credit hours is required for graduation; a minimum of 41 of these is required within the major not counting the prerequisite courses totaling 18 semester hours. A total of 40 upper division credit hours is required for graduation from Weber State University (courses numbered 3000 and above).

Sociology

Sociology Coordinator: Marjukka Ollilainen (801) 626-6241

Sociology is the study of social life, social change, and the social causes and consequences of human behavior. Sociologists investigate the structure of groups, organizations, and societies, and how people interact within these contexts. Since all human behavior is social, the subject matter of sociology includes, but is not limited to, street crime and delinquency, corporate downsizing, how people express emotions, welfare or education reform, how families differ and flourish, divisions of ethnicity, gender and social class, religious cults, medicine, media, and other social phenomena. Because sociology addresses the most challenging issues of our time, it is a rapidly expanding field whose potential is increasingly tapped by those who craft policies and create programs. Few fields have such broad scope and relevance for research, theory, and application of knowledge. Sociology is a popular major for students planning futures in such professions as law, business, education, architecture, politics, public administration, urban planning and development, human services, and a myriad of other professions. It also provides a solid foundation for pursuing graduate degrees in related fields. Although a career as a sociologist requires a Master's Degree or PhD, an undergraduate education in sociology can be applied to almost any profession a student pursues.

Interdisciplinary Minors

The Sociology Department participates in the Asian Studies, Ethnic Studies, European Studies, Legal Studies and Women's Studies Minor Programs and the Urban and Regional Planning Emphasis Program. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of this catalog.)

Anthropology

Anthropology Coordinator: Dr. Brooke Arkush, 801-626-7202

Anthropology takes a holistic approach to describing and explaining human differences and similarities around the world and throughout time. It looks at humans both culturally and biologically within an ecological context. It examines contemporary humans as well as those of the historic and prehistoric past and searches for patterns of human existence. Specialized fields include archaeology, linguistics, ethnology, and biological anthropology. Students are taught to question and examine the significance of beliefs, attitudes and prejudices, and to understand the anthropological position of relativism and valuing cultural and biological variation. The program prepares students for a broad range of public and private sector employment in anthropology-related fields or to enter professional or graduate schools appropriate to their interests. Anthropology is an essential discipline in the 21st Century, contributing knowledge for successful living and working in our diverse human world.

Interdisciplinary Minors

The Anthropology Program participates in the Asian Studies, Ethnic Studies, Environmental Studies, European Studies, Latin American Studies, Linguistics, and Women's Studies Minor Programs. Military Science (Army ROTC)

Chair: Lieutenant Colonel Jason L. Webb

Location: Annex 11/Mail Code 4501

Telephone Contact: Jane Michels 801-626-6518; FAX 801-626-7651

Military Science (Army ROTC) focuses on leadership development. Students pursue the major of their choice while studying Military Science, and graduate with the ability to function effectively as leaders. Upon completion of Army ROTC and graduation from college students become commissioned officers in the active Army, Army Reserve or National Guard.

Instructors, uniforms and equipment are provided at no cost to the student or the University. All contracted students receive $300- $500 per month ($3,000-$5,000 per academic year). Army ROTC also covers the cost of tuition and fees for Army ROTC scholarship students and provides a book allowance of $1,200 per academic year.

The Margin of Difference. Army ROTC cadets learn to be leaders and receive hands-on experience in managing physical, financial, and human resources. They develop self-confidence and superior decision-making skills. Employers value these leadership qualities and recognize associated potential.

Four-Year Program. The traditional Army ROTC program covers four years consistent with normal undergraduate progression (freshman-senior). The four-year program is divided into two parts called the basic course and the advanced course. The basic course is usually taken during the first two years of college. It covers subjects such as land navigation, leadership development, small unit tactics, weapons marksmanship and military history. This program is designed for high performing students who wish to try Military Science without obligation, while enhancing their leadership skills and self-confidence. Upon successful completion of the basic course, students are eligible to enter the advanced course.

Advanced course requirements are normally completed during the junior and senior years. The advanced course further develops and refines leadership competencies, and qualifies the student for a commission in the United States Army. Advanced course students receive a $450 (Junior year) - $500 (Senior year) per month tax-free subsistence allowance [$4,500 (Junior year) - $5,000 (Senior year) per year].

Two-Year Program. This is a special program for junior and community college transfers or students who did not take Army ROTC during their first two years of college. To enter the two year program, a student first participates in a four-week leadership training course. This usually takes place between the sophomore and junior year. Students are paid for attending this instruction, have the opportunity to compete for two-year scholarships, and may receive academic credit.

Scholarships. Army ROTC provides numerous scholarship opportunities. All WSU contracted cadets receive some form of financial assistance, which can include up to 100% tuition, fees, books and other costs paid. High school seniors may qualify for the four-year Army ROTC scholarship. College students may qualify for four, three, or two-year scholarships. Students may choose from two different options. The first option pays the cost of tuition and fees and a flat rate for textbooks and classroom supplies. The second option pays the students up to $10,000 for housing and the same flat rate for textbooks and classroom supplies. The Green to Gold scholarship allows Soldiers serving on active duty to leave the Army early and attend college/ROTC full-time while receiving scholarship benefits. Other scholarship opportunities include: room and book grants and the Western Undergraduate Exchange (WUE) program. Nursing students qualify for additional incentives. Call or visit the Department of Military Science for details.

Placement Credit For Veterans. Veterans may qualify for advanced course placement based on prior military experience. Concurrently, they can take full advantage of veteran's benefits and receive financial aid for Army ROTC participation.

Simultaneous Membership Program (SMP). This program is available to cadets who wish to serve in the Army Reserve or National Guard while attending college and pursuing a commission through Army ROTC. SMP students are eligible to receive Reserve drill pay, tuition assistance, other monetary incentives, and $350-$500 per month ($3,000-$5,000 per academic year) from Army ROTC. Call or visit the Department of Military Science for details.

Leave of Absence. Students, including scholarship recipients, who wish to take a leave of absence to serve a mission for their church can do so conveniently before the start of the Junior year.

Commission Requirements. In order to qualify for a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army, each student must:

1. Complete all required Military Science instruction while attending college as a full-time student, and obtain a baccalaureate or higher degree prior to age 31 (age waiver possible for qualified students).
2. Meet medical and physical fitness standards.
3. Be a U.S. citizen.
4. Successfully complete the Leadership Development and Assessment Course.
5. Be recommended by the Professor of Military Science.

Service Obligation. There is no military service obligation for basic course students, unless on scholarship. Advanced course and scholarship (contracted) students incur an obligation to serve in the active Army, Army Reserve or National Guard.

Aerospace Studies (Air Force ROTC)

Weber State provides a program in Aerospace Studies (Air Force) through an inter-campus agreement with the University of Utah. Students may minor in Aerospace Studies by satisfying requirements identified.

Chair: Lt Col Angelique P. Brown (SLC)

Location: Building 4, Room 421J

Telephone Contact: 801-626-7649 or 801-581-6236

Professor: Lt Col Michael Eliason

Assistant Professor: Capt Daniel Luczak

The Department of Aerospace Studies offers two, three, and four-year programs through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC). These provide matriculated students an opportunity to earn commissions as officers in the U.S. Air Force in conjunction with completing bachelor's degree requirements in academic fields of the students' choice. AFROTC provides education that develops abilities and attitudes vital to the career of a professional Air Force officer and gives an understanding of the mission and the global responsibilities of the U.S. Air Force.

The Department of Aerospace Studies offers academic preparation in interdisciplinary areas including communication skills, Air Force history, leadership and management principles and practices, decision-making theory and policy formulation, ethics and values, socialization process within the armed services, national and international relations, national defense structure, national security policy, and military law. Entry into the General Military Course (GMC) during the first two years of AFROTC is open to all students. Entry into the Professional Officer Course (POC) during the final two years is selective and is normally initiated during the student's sophomore year. Potential candidate should contact the faculty for the most current information.

Undergraduate Program

General Requirements. Enrollment is open to men and women who:

1. Are U.S. citizens or applicants for naturalization. (Non-U.S. citizens may participate in the General Military Course for academic credit only.)
2. Are at least 14 years of age.
3. Are enrolled as full-time students in a program leading to an academic degree (bachelor's degree or higher).

Additional qualifications for admittance to the Professional Officer Course include:

4. Complete 1 through 3, above, plus the following:

- The General Military Course (four-year program) and a four-week field training course, or a six-week field training course (two-year program).
5. Complete all commissioning requirements prior to the following:
 - Age 29 if a pilot or navigator candidate, or
 - Age 35 for all other categories. Waivers to extend the maximum age may be granted on a case-by-case basis.
 6. Meet the physical standards for general military service.
 7. Attain the current minimum scores on the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test.
 8. Have a recommendation from a board of Air Force officers.
 9. Are at least 17 years old and enlist in the Air Force Reserve prior to entering the POC.

Commissioning Requirements. The requirements for commissioning include successful completion of the Professional Officer Course and field training, completion of a bachelor's or higher degree, and acceptance of a commission in the U.S. Air Force.

Service Obligation. There is no military service commitment for students in the General Military Course unless the student has an AFROTC scholarship. Those entering the Professional Officer Course incur an active-duty service commitment of not less than four (4) years after receiving a commission. POC graduates who are navigator candidates agree to serve six (6) years of active duty after graduation from navigator training. POC graduates who are pilot candidates accept ten (10) years of active duty service after graduation from pilot training.

Financial Aid. All AFROTC contracted cadets receive a monthly tax free allowance depending on their student status (Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, or Senior).

Uniforms and Texts. All Air Force texts and uniforms are furnished at no expense to the student.

Scholarships. AFROTC scholarships are available to qualified applicants in two, three and four-year programs. Each scholarship provides full tuition*, laboratory and incidental fees, and limited reimbursement for curriculum-required textbooks. In addition, scholarship cadets receive a nontaxable cash allowance each month during the academic year while on scholarship status. Scholarships are available on a competitive basis for two, two and one-half, three, or three and one-half years. Applications for scholarships should be made directly to the Professor of Aerospace Studies, 1901 E. South Campus Drive, Room 2009.

to $9,000*

AFROTC Programs

Two basic routes to an Air Force Commission are available to college students in the AFROTC. Entering students may enroll in the AFROTC four-year program, and those with at least two academic years remaining may apply for the two-year program. Students having an intermediate amount of school remaining (e.g., three years) may enroll in an adjusted four-year program.

Four-Year Program. Matriculated students may pursue the four-year program. Enrollment procedures for the first two years of AFROTC, known as the General Military Course, are the same as for any other college course. The GMC consists of one hour of course work and two hours of leadership laboratory each week.

During the sophomore year, cadets may apply for the last two years of the program, the Professional Officer Course. Requirements for entry into the POC are listed earlier under General Requirements. If selected for the POC, GMC cadets are scheduled to attend a four-week field training course at an Air Force base during the summer months.

Students enrolled in AFROTC may major in any field.

Two-Year Program. For entry into the two-year program, two academic years must remain at the undergraduate or graduate level, or a combination of the two. Two-year program applicants must qualify by meeting the same criteria as students in the General Military Course who are applying for POC entry. (See General Requirements.)

Each applicant must successfully complete a six-week field training course at an Air Force base during the summer months. This course provides academic and military preparation for entry into the POC. Those fulfilling all requirements, including the successful completion of field training, complete enrollment procedures upon return to campus. Application for the two-year program should be made early in the academic year (normally sophomore year) so that requirements may be completed in time for assignment to summer field training.

Note: Classes are held at the University of Utah.

The Master of Health Administration (MHA) program at Weber State University is designed to meet the needs of working healthcare professionals and to prepare them for executive leadership in the healthcare industry. Firmly grounded in the development of three overarching domains: Personal, Professional, and Applied Skills, the program fosters self-development, critical thinking and life-long learning.

Full-time students can complete the MHA or the eMHA in two academic years. All courses in the campus MHA are offered in a hybrid, face-to-face/online, eight-week format on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at our Davis campus. eMHA students spend 1.5 days on campus each semester with the balance of the coursework completed online. MHA and eMHA courses are taught by an optimum blend of academic professors and working healthcare executives and culminate in a real-time final project resulting in a deliverable of importance and measurable value to one of their local healthcare organizations.

The WSU Master of Science in Athletic Training (MSAT) degree is designed to enable students with a bachelor's degree in an area other than athletic training to obtain eligibility for the Board of Certification (BOC) examination. This program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Athletic Training Education (CAATE). Graduates of the MSAT are eligible for the Board of Certification (BOC) examination.

The program provides students with knowledge and skills in the prevention, evaluation, treatment, and rehabilitation of musculoskeletal injuries and general medical conditions. The Master of Science in Athletic Training program is specifically designed to prepare students for a career in health care as a certified athletic trainer. Athletic trainers are currently employed in colleges and universities, public and private high schools, corporations, rehabilitation clinics, professional sports organizations, the military, factories, and hospitals (www.nata.org - National Athletic Trainers' Association).

The priority application deadline is January 15 for the following fall semester. Applications received after the deadline will be considered on a rolling admissions basis if available slots still exist. Students are encouraged to apply by the January 15th deadline, as the program will likely reach capacity at that point. The online application may be accessed on-line at: <https://atcas.liasoncas.com>.

Post-Admission Requirements

After formal admission to the Athletic Training Master's degree program, students are required to complete an FBI background check and drug test. The WSU Master of Science in Athletic Training Program enters into Affiliation Agreements with multiple healthcare facilities and schools throughout the state. These agreements provide WSU MSAT students and faculty authorized access to facility resources and patients. In response to stipulations contained within one or more of these Agreements, the WSU MSAT requires students admitted to the program to submit to an FBI level criminal background check as well as a urine drug test. This screening process has been mandated by the WSU MSAT in an effort to more effectively protect the safety and well-being of the patients, clients, and residents of those facilities, and is fully supported by the Department of Athletic Training and the MSAT faculty.

Both the background check and the drug test will be completed during the student's first semester. The expenses (approximately $80) will be paid for by the student.

Additional Admission Requirements for International Students

All international students and any applicants educated outside the U.S. must demonstrate proficiency in English. Those whose native language is not English, or whose language of instruction for their undergraduate degree was not English, will be required to submit an official score from the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) which is not more than two years old and on which a minimum score of 563 (paper-based), or 85 (internet-based) with a minimum score of 17 in each section, has been earned. The MSAT Program also accepts the International English Language Testing System (IELTS) - applicants may have an official score report sent to the MSAT Program Director which is not more than two years old and on which a minimum score of 6.5 overall, with a minimum of 6.0 in each section, has been earned.

Students who have not earned the minimum required English proficiency scores may still be admitted conditionally. Student who have at least a score of 70 on the TOEFL exam (internet-based) would be required to begin ESL and other coursework at Weber State University one semester prior to beginning MSAT coursework. During this preparatory semester, students would be required to complete, with a grade of a C+ or better, approximately 8 credits of ESL courses and complete, with a grade of C or better, approximately 6 credits of MSAT prerequisite courses.

Students who have a 61-69 score on the TOEFL exam would be required to begin ESL and other coursework at Weber State University for two semesters prior to beginning MSAT coursework. During this preparatory semester, students would be required to complete, with a grade of a C+ or better, approximately 8 credits of ESL courses per semester and complete, with a grade of C or better, approximately 6 credits of MSAT prerequisite courses per semester.

The MSAT Program Director will determine which ESL and prerequisite courses are most appropriate based on the student's undergraduate coursework and English proficiency scores.

Minimum English Proficiency scores for conditional admissions:

TOEFL (internet-based) - 70 (one semester); 61 (two semesters)

TOEFL (paper-based) - 525 (one semester); 500 (two semesters)

IELTS - 6.0 (one semester); 5.5 (two semesters)

Selection Process

1. All applications will be ranked by using a numerical scale to rate the elements of the application.
2. Students receiving the highest scores in the rating process will be invited to enter the Master of Science in Athletic Training Program. The selection committee is comprised of the MSAT faculty. The number of students chosen to enter the program each year will vary, in compliance with accreditation guidelines related to professor and preceptor-to-student ratios. Selection into the MSAT is competitive and satisfaction of the minimum requirements does not guarantee admission.
3. Applicants not invited to enter the MSAT may reapply the following year. All applicants who reapply must meet all requirements in effect at the time of reapplication. Students who choose to reapply must review the program website and/or catalog for current admission requirements at that time.
4. All students selected for the MSAT must provide evidence of being able to meet the Technical Standards for Admission of the program. Only those students who verify that they can meet those technical standards, with or without reasonable accommodations, will be allowed to enter the program. The Technical Standards can be found on the program's website at: <https://www.weber.edu/msat/admission.html>

Retention Requirements

1. After students are selected into the MSAT, retention in the program will be based on the following criteria:
 1. Grade "B-" or better in all required MSAT courses (includes Graduate Practicum courses).
 2. Maintain an overall Weber State University Graduate GPA of 3.0.
 3. Adhere to MSAT Athletic Training Student Handbook Policies.

2. Students who fail to meet the retention criteria will be placed on probation in the MSAT program for one semester. If standards are not met by the end of the probationary period, the student will be dismissed from the program. Students who receive a grade lower than a "B-" in any required MSAT course must repeat that course and receive a grade of "B-" or higher to remain in the program. Failure to repeat the course (when offered) will result in dismissal from the program. Students who receive a grade lower than a "B-" in two or more MSAT courses will be dismissed from the program.

Master of Science in Respiratory Therapy

Director: Paul Eberle, PhD, RRT

Location: Marriott Allied Health Building, Rm 309B

Telephone: Administrative Assistant, Amy Heaps (801) 626-7071

Enrollment Director: Alisa Kimball (801) 626-6840

The MSRT program is designed for post-professional career development and to prepare respiratory care practitioners as 1) department or clinical administrators, 2) college-level faculty and/or asthma educators, and 3) clinical researchers employed within a variety of healthcare institutions. Two of five post-professional practice credentials (Certified PFT [CPFT] or Registered PFT [RPFT], Sleep Disorders Specialist [SDS] or Registered Polysomnographic Technologist [RPsGT], Adult Critical Care Specialist [ACCS], Neonatal/Pediatric Specialist [NPS], and Asthma Educator [AE-C]) relative to practitioner expertise are required for completion of the degree. Additionally, specific concentrations/emphasis of practice will prepare students for advanced careers in respiratory care. These concentrations are specifically intended for individuals with clinical experience pursuing advanced career pathways in administration, as college faculty, or as clinical researchers or health care consultants. Master of Science in Respiratory Therapy graduates participate in the health care arena as post-professional leaders with roles as clinical respiratory therapists prepared to provide guidance and administrative leadership to departments and to undergraduates throughout the educational processes associated with providing, managing, coordinating, and consulting in respiratory care.

The MSRT degree consists of 36 credit hours beyond the earned baccalaureate degree. This includes core courses in medical writing, medical pathophysiology, and medical ethics and law (9 credits), and providing a mechanism for two post-professional practice credentials. Additionally, concentrations chosen by the student in areas of health administration, college-level faculty or asthma educator, or clinical research (9 credits per concentration) are required for emphasis. MSRT students are required to complete 6 credits as a capstone project incorporating research principles learned throughout the curriculum. The MSRT program is developed with "hybrid" educational courses. This means the majority of coursework will be online with a few scheduled classroom experiences dependent on the area of concentration/emphasis chosen.

Department of Dental Hygiene

Department Chair: Frances McConaughy

Location: Allied Health, Room 475

Professor: Frances McConaughy; Associate Professors: Susan Alexander, Shelly Costley, Shane Perry; Assistant Professors: Kimberlee Caldwell, Joe Hopkin; Instructor: Kathren Diamond

The dental hygienist is a health educator and clinician concerned with the prevention of dental disease. Dental hygienists perform their services in a variety of settings, and are members of the dental team who are licensed to provide services directly to the client. Dental hygienists provide oral health education, remove deposits from around the teeth and gums, expose dental radiographs and deliver other treatments to prevent and manage dental disease.

The dental hygiene curriculum is three years in length. The first year may be completed at any accredited college or university and consists of pre dental hygiene courses. These courses include: chemistry, anatomy, physiology, microbiology, English, public speaking, psychology, sociology and nutrition. This year of pre-dental hygiene courses is followed by two years of specialized study in dental hygiene.

The two year dental hygiene curriculum includes practical experience in the WSU Dental Hygiene Clinic. Students also rotate to off-campus sites for extended clinical experiences.

Students who successfully complete the three-year curriculum are awarded an Associate of Science degree from Weber State. A fourth year leading to a bachelor's degree is optional. To become a licensed dental hygienist, each student must successfully pass a written National Board Exam and a practical regional exam. Department of Emergency Healthcare

Department Chair: William Robertson, MEd, NRP

Location: Marriott Allied Health Building, Room 409

Telephone Contact: Ana McMurry 801-626-6521

Associate Professor: William Robertson; Assistant Professors: Andrea Lalumia, Christine O'Neil

Medical Advisor: Jon Apfelbaum, M.D.

A paramedic is a person who usually renders advanced life support care to persons at the site of an illness or injury or en route to a hospital facility. They function under the direct supervision of an Emergency Physician or Registered Nurse and are certified for such functioning by a state Emergency Medical Services agency.

The institutional certificate and two-year applied science degree program in Paramedic Studies are based on a national curriculum designed to provide an academic background in science, health related fields, and communication using critical thinking and assessment based management. The program prerequisites provide the general requirements and foundation that prepares the student to meet the demands of the paramedic courses.

Satisfactory completion of the prerequisite requirements are required prior to starting the paramedic sequence and include:

1. a "C" or better in ENGL 1010, MATH 0990 , Anatomy and Physiology classes, and Medical Terminology; and
2. an overall GPA of 2.7 or above; and
3. Current state EMT Certification; and
4. a score of 75% or better on the departmental EMT assessment exam on no more than two attempts

The longstanding Utah Bureau of EMS policy requiring one year of EMS experience or Advanced EMT has been relaxed. Eligible students may wish to consider PAR 1005 and PAR 1006 to gain EMS field experience prior to entering the paramedic program.

This program may require more than two years for completion depending upon the timing it takes for an individual to complete the prerequisite requirements.

Weber State contracts with authorized clinical and field agencies to precept students for EMT and paramedic certification. Background criminal investigation and drug testing of students is required prior to starting PAR 2000 in the fall semester.

"The WSU Emergency Healthcare Department's paramedic program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (www.caahep.org) upon the recommendation of the Committee on Accreditation of Educational Programs for the Emergency Medical Services Professions (CoAEMSP)."

The paramedic program will "prepare competent entry-level Paramedics in the cognitive (knowledge), psychomotor (skills), and affective (behavior) learning domains," with or without exit points at the Emergency Medical Responder, Emergency Medical Technician, and Advanced Intermediate levels.

Acceptance to the paramedic program does not assure eligibility for a state or National Registry certification. Utah or a related state Office of EMS makes the final decisions on the issuance of professional licensure or certification. For students that may have a disability or testing accommodation concerns you must contact the Utah Bureau of EMS or National Registry of EMT's. See health.utah.gov/ems and nremt.org

Department of Health Administrative Services

Department Chair: Dr. Darcy Carter

Location: Interprofessional Education Building, Rm 210

Telephone Contact: Kristi Andersen 801-626-7242

Professors: Kenneth Johnson, Ann Millner, Patricia Shaw; Associate Professors: Darcy Carter, Cory Moss; Assistant Professors: Lindsay Garr, Heather Merkley, Miland Palmer; Instructors: Steven Bateman, Brian Cottle, Jason Riegert

The Health Administrative Services Program (HAS) provides an opportunity for health practitioners, students in the health disciplines, and others to prepare themselves for healthcare management, healthcare information, and health promotion roles in both traditional and nontraditional health care settings. In addition, many students use the program to prepare themselves for graduate studies in health administration and other related disciplines. The program is uniquely structured to help practicing health professionals build upon their two year professional degree or credential while at the same time accommodating the more traditional four-year student. The curriculum is organized so that students may tailor their studies in any one of five program options: Health Services Administration, Health Information Management (HIM), Long-Term Care Administration, Public Health, and Health Information Technology. All study emphases lead to a Bachelor's Degree except for Health Information Technology, which leads to an Associate of Applied Science degree, and Healthcare Coding and Classification, which leads to an Institutional Certificate. An Institutional Certificate is also offered in Health Information Management. The HAS program was developed to better prepare health practitioners and others to take advantage of the challenges and opportunities facing them as members of the nation's health care team.

Study Emphases

- Health Services Administration: Designed to provide health care practitioners and others with the skills and competencies to function as supervisors and managers in health care settings. In the changing health care environment, new and challenging demands are placed on health care personnel to expand their conventional roles to include increased administrative responsibilities. The HSA curriculum provides a working foundation in management and interpersonal skills, while at the same time introducing the student to the health care delivery system and its many and varied issues and challenges. Graduates are not only better prepared to assume increased management responsibilities, but to do so with a better understanding of the complex system in which they work. The HAS emphasis is certified by the Association of University Programs in Health Administration.
- Health Information Management: This profession focuses on health care data and the management of health care information resources. The profession addresses the nature and structure of health data and the translation of that data into usable forms of information which support the health care of individuals and populations. HIM professionals collect, integrate, and analyze primary and secondary collections of data and manage information resources related to the research, planning, provision, and evaluation of health care services. This emphasis provides students with the knowledge and skills necessary to become self-directed learners who possess critical-thinking skills and problem-solving abilities, communication and interpersonal skills, a commitment to life-long learning, and important ethical values. The program fosters the acquisition of leadership abilities and systems thinking necessary for adapting careers within a changing health care environment. The HIM emphasis is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Health Informatics and Information Management Education, making students eligible to write the national certification exam of the AHIMA, the Registered Health Information Administrator.
- Long-Term Care Administration: Prepares students to function as administrators in nursing homes and other long-term care facilities. The curriculum is designed to provide students with a foundation in management principles and human relations, introduce them to the long term care field, and give them operational experience in nursing home management. To function as an administrator in long-term care, one must be licensed. For licensure, most states require the completion of a bachelor's degree in health administration or a related area, an extensive administrative internship, and the successful passing of an examination offered by the National Board of Examiners for Nursing Home Administrators. The LTC emphasis is certified by the Association of University Programs in Health Administration.

Public Health

The Bachelor of Science in Public Health will prepare graduates to take entry-level jobs in epidemiology and public health administration and local and state department of health. Graduates will also be prepared to fill positions supporting public health research at academic institutions, pharmaceutical companies, and private research organizations. Additionally, completion of the degree will prepare students to enter a graduate program in Public Health, Biomedical Informatics, or Health Administration.

Health Information Technology

Health Information Technology is a program offered under Health Administrative Services.

Health Information Technicians perform the essential functions of maintaining health data and records in acute, long-term, and ambulatory health care settings. Opportunities also exist in related health care settings, e.g., insurance companies, medical clinics, computer software vendors, and health maintenance organizations. These functions include, but are not limited to, the coding of diseases and operations, maintaining statistics, transcribing medical reports, performing DRG and utilization review procedures, supervising employees.

In addition to classroom and laboratory course work, students participate in a supervised clinical experience in a hospital medical record department or other health information environment.

The Health Information Technology program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Health Informatics and Information Management Education.

Successful completion of the Health Information Technology two-year program leads to an associate of applied science degree and the student is then eligible to sit for the national certification exam. Students passing this national examination may use the professional designation Registered Health Information Technician.

Healthcare Coding and Classification

The program develops the ability of students to use the International Classification of Diseases, version 10 (ICD-10-CM), and the International Classification of Diseases, version 10, Procedural Coding System (ICD-10-PCS) of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and the Common Procedural Terminology (CPT) of the American Medical Association. The program develops expertise for both outpatient/office practice and acute-care inpatient levels of proficiency. Students will also use and apply both coding schemes in the systems of reimbursement for healthcare services.

Associate of Applied Science

Advisement

After the student has completed all the prerequisites they should meet with a faculty advisor for course and program advisement. Call 801-626-7242 for more information or to schedule an appointment. (Also refer to the Department Advisor Referral List.)

Admission Requirements

Each student must complete a program application after successful completion (grade of C or better) of the program pre-requisites.

All students admitted to the WSU Health Administrative Services AAS and BS program may be required to comply with a departmental background check and drug screen test prior to internship or other professional practice experience. If the background check reveals a history of convicted criminal actions, or the drug test results are positive for controlled substances, the students may be dismissed from the program and will not be entitled to any refunds of tuition or other fees. Most Healthcare employers have this same requirement as a condition of employment.

All students admitted within the WSU Health Administrative Services department may be required to comply with a departmental background check and drug screen test prior to internship or other professional practice experience. If the background check reveals a history of convicted criminal actions, or the drug test results are positive for controlled substances, then the students may be dismissed from the program and will not be entitled to any refunds of tuition or other fees. Most Health Care and Public Health employers have this same requirement as a condition of employment.

Medical Laboratory Scientists (MLS) and Medical Laboratory Technicians (MLT) - also known as Clinical Laboratory Scientists (CLS) and Clinical Laboratory Technicians (CLT) - perform laboratory tests on patient samples to provide information needed to diagnose or monitor treatment. These professionals do everything from providing cancer-testing results, to predicting the correct antibiotic to prescribe, to typing the correct blood for surgery. Examples of common laboratory tests include tests to detect anemia, diagnose diabetes and strep throat, and provide a transfusion to an accident victim. Doctors rely on laboratory test results to make informed patient diagnoses. Patient history along with physical signs and symptoms are vital, but most diagnoses need confirmation that only laboratory tests can provide. The laboratory professionals provide answers to life-and-death questions every day.

The MLS program follows a ladder approach from the Associates of Applied Science (AAS) degree through a Bachelor of Science (BS) degree. Students interested in applying to the campus associate level MLT program must first meet with an academic advisor and complete prerequisite courses. If accepted into the MLT program, successful completion of two academic semesters leads to an Associates of Applied Science degree, and allows graduates eligibility to national certification (ASCP MLT). Qualified students wishing to continue can apply for acceptance into the MLS BS program, which generally requires two years of study and provides eligibility to national certification (ASCP MT) upon successful completion of all academic requirements.

Students interested in the online MLS AAS Program must be employed, or have the support of, a clinical laboratory. Students will receive the didactic (lecture) portion of each course online, while completing specific laboratory competencies in the clinical laboratory under the supervision of qualified clinical laboratory mentors where they work. Please refer to the employer support information on the MLS Department web site: <http://www.weber.edu/mls> (online DEGREES/PROGRAMS).

Accreditation

The Medical Laboratory Sciences Programs are nationally accredited by the National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Science (NAACLS) 5600 N. River Rd. Suite 720, Rosemont, IL 60018-5119. <http://www.naacls.org>.

Associate of Applied Science

Medical Laboratory Sciences (AAS)

- Credit Hour Requirements: A total of 67-68 credit hours is required for graduation, 33-34 of these are required MLS courses, 22 are required support courses, and 12 are required general education courses.
- Program Code: 2039AAS
- CIPC: 511004

Certification

Medical Laboratory Sciences Clinical Laboratory Assistant (CLA) Certificate of Completion

The Clinical Laboratory Assistant (CLA) certificate of completion is designed to teach core clinical laboratory skills to individuals from various health care professions. The curriculum will focus on basic laboratory methods in quality control, quality assurance, information recording and transfer, normal and abnormal laboratory values, and problem recognition. Students will receive basic technical instruction in laboratory safety, microscopy, phlebotomy, specimen collection and processing, and laboratory instrumentation in the areas of hematology, serology, urinalysis, clinical chemistry, and microbiology. Upon successful completion of the course, students will receive a Certificate of Completion from the Dumke College of Health Profession's Clinical Laboratory Assistant (CLA) program and are designated as CLA level assistant IV by local industry.

For campus students, the CLA certificate is granted after successful completion of MLS 1113, Intro to Medical Laboratory Practices.

Online students must complete MLS 1010, Core Clinical Laboratory Skills, and have the support of a clinical laboratory to fulfill the laboratory requirement. The laboratory component will address applications with a focus on point-of-care-testing (POCT). Students will be required to spend a minimum of 64 unpaid hours during the semester working on laboratory competency. If students wish to continue to further their education, MLS 1113 will be waived upon enrollment into the MLS AAS Program at WSU. Contact the AAS/MLT online academic advisor, Christy Achter, at 801-626-6874 or christyachter@weber.edu for advising.

Program History

Founded in 1953, nursing at Weber State University offers students career progression from Associate RN Degree to Associate of Science (PN to RN) or Associate of Applied Science Degree Nursing (AAS) (PN to RN), to Baccalaureate Nursing (BSN), to Master of Science in Nursing via a ladder curriculum. The curriculum model enables student progression through various preparation levels in accordance with individual ability, aspirations, career goals and changing life circumstances. The program ensures entry level practitioners by providing a foundation from the physical, biological, behavioral and nursing sciences for application in caring for clients in a variety of nursing environments.

The nursing program embraces three levels of preparation for nursing practice: Associate's Degree Nursing (ADN), RN to BSN (BS), and Master of Science in Nursing (MSN). Educational offerings provide distinctive purposes and expectations for each level of nursing preparation while recognizing common areas of achievement within each level. Competency standards define graduate characteristics at each preparation level. Four entry options are available for students. Two of these lead to licensure by examination at AS/AAS levels. The third option leads to a baccalaureate degree in nursing. The fourth option leads to a master of science in nursing with either a concentration in nursing administration or nursing education.

Entry Options

Registered Nurse (RN) [AS]: Two years are required for students entering this option. Students selecting this option must complete nursing major credits plus fulfill university general education credits required for graduation with an associate of science degree. Students selected for an associate of science degree in nursing may take the NCLEX-PN through the equivalency clause in the Utah Nurse Practice Act at completion of the first year. An additional year of course work entitles graduates to take the National Examination for licensure as a registered nurse.

PN to RN Program (RN Completion) [AS/AAS]: This entry option is open to PN's and those eligible to take the NCLEX-PN. Students selecting this option must complete one additional year of nursing major credits plus fulfill university general education credits required for graduation with an associate of applied science / associate of science degree.

Registered Nurse to BSN (RN-to-BSN) [BS]: The BSN Option is available to registered nurses who have completed an AS degree in nursing. Potential students must have an active unencumbered Utah license or plan to successfully pass the NCLEX-RN exam within the first semester of the BSN program.

Previous graduates of an AAS degree will need to complete the WSU general education requirements for the AS Degree prior to requesting admission to the RN to BSN program.

Admission is dependent upon program space availability.

Master of Science in Nursing (MSN): The MSN program is designed to prepare 1) nurse administrators, 2) college-level nursing faculty, and 3) nurse educators employed within healthcare institutions. The concentrations of nursing educator and nurse administrator will prepare students for advanced careers in nursing. Both concentrations are specifically intended for individuals with nursing experience who want to advance their careers as nurse administrators or college faculty.

Please refer to Master of Science in Nursing (MSN) for requirements.

Licensure

Applicants who have been convicted of a felony, treated for serious mental illness or substance abuse should discuss their eligibility status with the Utah State Board of Nursing. Acceptance to the nursing program does not assure eligibility for a RN license. The Utah Board of Nursing makes final decisions on issuance of professional licensure.

Accreditation

The School of Nursing programs (AAS/AS, BSN, and MSN) are accredited by:

Department of Respiratory Therapy

Department Chair: Paul Eberle, PhD, RRT

Medical Director: Christopher Anderson, M.D.

Location: Marriott Allied Health Building, Rm 309

Telephone: Administrative Assistant, Amy Heaps (801) 626-7071

Professor: Paul Eberle; Associate Professors: Janelle Gardiner, Mich Oki; Instructor: Sharri Vasas, Heidi Voorhees

Respiratory care professionals are actively involved, as members of the health care team, in the diagnosis, treatment, management, education, and long-term care of patients with cardiopulmonary problems. These patients may be in the newborn nursery, surgical/medical/rehabilitation units, outpatient clinics, Emergency Room, or cardiac/shock-trauma/burn/neurologic intensive care units. Respiratory Care Practitioners [RCPs] are employed in both acute and long-term care hospitals, skilled nursing facilities, and home health agencies.

Licensed RCPs perform therapeutic and diagnostic procedures under the direction of a physician. Respiratory care practitioners are competent in basic patient care and assessment, medical gas administration, aerosol and humidity therapy, medication administration, hyperinflation techniques, bronchopulmonary drainage and percussion, mechanical ventilation, airway management, advanced cardiac life support, pulmonary function studies, and blood gas sampling and analysis. Patient education, smoking cessation/nicotine intervention, and health promotion are also included in the RCP scope of practice.

The respiratory therapy program follows a career-ladder approach from the pre-professional level through a Bachelor of Science degree. The pre-professional level requires two academic years, leads to an Associate of Applied Science degree, and qualifies the student for the Respiratory Therapy Bachelor of Science program providing eligibility to national credentialing and licensure to practice respiratory care (RCP). Acceptance to the pre-professional level requires program completion through the Bachelor of Science degree level.

Licensure

Applicants who have been convicted of a felony, treated for serious mental illness or substance abuse should discuss their eligibility status with the Utah Department of Professional Licensing. Acceptance to the respiratory therapy program does not assure eligibility for a RCP license. The Utah Department of Professional Licensing makes final decisions on issuance of professional licensure. Any student that is convicted of a felony will be dismissed from the program.

Accreditation

The Respiratory Therapy Program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Respiratory Care (CoARC), P.O. Box 54876 Hurst, Texas 76054-4876.

To fulfill its mission, the department sets the following goals for graduates of the program: 1) To prepare graduates with demonstrated competence in the cognitive (knowledge), psychomotor (skills), and affective (behavior) learning domains of respiratory care practice as performed by registered respiratory therapists (RRTs) and,

2) to prepare leaders for the field of respiratory care by including curricular content that includes objectives related to acquisition of skills in one or more of the following: management, education, research, advanced clinical practice (which may include an area of clinical specialization). Program credentialing, attrition, and on-time graduation outcomes may be reviewed at the following site:

Doctor of Nursing Practice

Chair: Dr. Sally Cantwell

Director: Deborah Judd, DNP, APRN, FNP-C (801) 626-7862

Location: Marriott Allied Health Building, Rm 438

Graduate Nursing Administrative Assistant: Cheryl Hyatt (801) 626-6137 or cherylhyatt@weber.edu

Enrollment Director: Robert Holt (801) 626-7774, prompt 6 or rholt@weber.edu

The Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) degree is a practice-focused terminal degree in nursing, designed for nurses who are seeking preparation and excellence at the highest level of clinical nursing practice. The DNP program of study has two emphases: a family nurse practitioner emphasis and a leadership emphasis. Both emphases focus on direct and indirect advanced nursing practice leadership and healthcare provision to influence the health outcomes of individuals and populations from a systems approach. The DNP-Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) emphasis prepares nurses with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) to become eligible for national FNP certification, which is an advanced practice registered nurse (APRN) and future healthcare leadership. The DNP-Leadership emphasis prepares nurses who possess a BSN and a master's degree in one of the following-nursing, public health, business, or health administration for healthcare transformation and leadership.

Graduates of the DNP program are prepared to fully evaluate, translate, and implement science for improved healthcare outcomes and healthcare systems improvement. The practice-focused DNP degree is distinctly different from a Ph.D. or research doctoral degree program. The Annie Taylor Dee School of Nursing is responsive to national APRN academic and practice mandates recommendations and community workplace demands for leadership and access to primary care in our regional health care systems.

The DNP degree at WSU ensures optimally prepared nurse practitioners and nurse leaders who achieve the university's dual mission; integrating access, learning, and community in the service of high-quality health care and favorable outcomes for regional patients, families, and communities. Nationally, the DNP degree is replacing the Master of Science in Nursing (MSN) for all APRNs as this terminal degree in the field becomes the requirement by 2025. The DNP degree is the preferred degree for advanced nursing practice for the provision of direct and indirect care (executive leadership, health policy, informatics, and population health).

Admission

Admission is competitive; therefore, the criteria listed on the application form should be considered as minimum standards.

Applicants must apply for admission to the DNP-Leadership program. Applications may be obtained online on the Annie Taylor Dee School of Nursing website <http://weber.edu/nursing>.

Applications must be completed and on file by the admission cycle application deadline. An application fee must be paid at the time the application is submitted. Admission applications are reviewed by the Annie Taylor Dee School of Nursing Program Admissions and Advancement Committee.

Applicants are notified of committee decision by email and/or US Postal Service mail. Admission requirements are outlined on the applicant website available at <http://weber.edu/nursing>.

Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP)

The Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) degree is a practice-focused terminal degree in nursing, designed for nurses who are seeking preparation and excellence at the highest level of clinical nursing practice. The DNP program of study has two emphases: a family nurse practitioner emphasis and a leadership emphasis. Both emphases focus on direct and indirect advanced nursing practice leadership and healthcare provision to influence the health outcomes of individuals and populations from a systems approach. The DNP-Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) emphasis prepares nurses with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) to become eligible for national FNP certification, which is an advanced practice registered nurse (APRN) and future healthcare leadership. The DNP-Leadership emphasis prepares nurses who possess a BSN and a master's degree in one of the following-nursing, public health, business, or health administration for healthcare transformation and leadership.

Graduates of the DNP program are prepared to fully evaluate, translate, and implement science for improved healthcare outcomes and healthcare systems improvement. The practice-focused DNP degree is distinctly different from a Ph.D. or research doctoral degree program. The Annie Taylor Dee School of Nursing is responsive to national APRN academic and practice mandates recommendations and community workplace demands for leadership and access to primary care in our regional health care systems.

The DNP degree at WSU ensures optimally prepared nurse practitioners and nurse leaders who achieve the university's dual mission; integrating access, learning, and community in the service of high-quality health care and favorable outcomes for regional patients, families, and communities. Nationally, the DNP degree is replacing the Master of Science in Nursing (MSN) for all APRNs as this terminal degree in the field becomes the requirement by 2025. The DNP degree is the preferred degree for advanced nursing practice for the provision of direct and indirect care (executive leadership, health policy, informatics, and population health).

Grade Requirements: To earn the DNP degree, candidates must successfully complete all DNP program courses with a grade of "B-" or higher and maintain an overall program GPA of 3.0 or higher.

Program Code: Nursing Practice (2060DNP) with Concentration/Emphasis in Family Nurse Practitioner (2062) or Leadership (2061).

John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics Mission Statement

Mission

The John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics provides quality undergraduate and graduate education for developing professionals and career-oriented students. minors, second degrees, and certificates is provided by the Goddard School's Advising Team: Alex Muller, WB 211 A, Christine Moua,

WB 211B, and Karen Hicks, WB 211C. (801) 626-6534 or advisebusiness@weber.edu

major declaration is provided by the Goddard School Advising Center online at <https://weber.edu/goddard/Declare.html> major selection, employment preparation, including internships and resumes, and business etiquette is provided by the Goddard School Career Center, Brett Merrell, WB 213, (801) 626-7914.

Credit Policy

Obsolete Credit: John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics credits and certain MATH courses (MATH 1050, 1080, or 1210) earned more than ten (10) years earlier than the proposed date of graduation will not be accepted toward University or major requirements unless validated through a challenge examination or approved by the appropriate academic department chair.

Waiver Requests: Any exceptions to the printed Goddard School graduation requirements must be approved by the appropriate academic department chair prior to waiving, substituting, or taking the course(s) in question.

Transfer Credit Policy

Transfer students should submit transcripts from all institutions of higher education to the Weber State University Admissions office. Student Recruitment at (801) 626-6050 will consult with Admissions to determine which general education credits will be accepted by Weber State. Most courses with a grade of "C-" or higher are eligible for credit. However, some courses, such as the General Education MATH and ENGL Core requirements, may require a higher grade.

Students should establish transfer of general education work prior to meeting with the John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics Advisement Center. The Advising Center will consult with Goddard School academic departments to determine credit toward specific Goddard School requirements and address further transfer issues.

The Utah System of Higher Education (USHE) Transfer Credit Guide has been established to indicate articulation of equivalent courses between the in-state public colleges and universities. Credits from business courses transferred from institutions not covered by the USHE Transfer Credit Guide are accepted only if approved by the appropriate Goddard School academic departments. Documentation which allows the Advising Center and department chairs to assess the content of courses taken may be required. This documentation may include: catalogs or bulletins; course outlines or syllabi; and transcripts. In the majority of cases, course credit which is not obsolete (see above) taken at institutions accredited by AACSB International will be accepted and applied to the Goddard School's graduation requirements.

The Goddard School may require validation for courses taken at other institutions before credit is applied to Goddard School requirements. This validation may consist of either: passing a challenge exam; or completing the next course in a related sequence with a grade of "C" or better. Validation may be required where upper division credit is sought for lower division course work taken at another institution.

Students are reminded that the Weber State catalog states, "Acceptance of credit should not be confused with its application. Transfer credit may or may not apply to Weber State's graduation requirements, regardless of the number of credits transferred. Credit other than that intended wholly to meet general education requirements, will be applied to Weber State's specific degree program requirements upon the recommendation of the appropriate department chair." This means credit that is accepted by Weber State may, or may not, apply to specific requirements within the Goddard School.

Students transferring credits from institutions outside the U.S. should follow the guidelines for International Students. Transfer credits should appear on the student's WSU transcript before meeting with the Goddard School Advising Center or major department chair.

International Programs

The John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics offers a number of curricular programs and study opportunities designed to enhance the global expertise of our students.

The Goddard School annually offers faculty-led study abroad programs to countries all over the world. Typical programs are 10 to 14 days in duration.

The Goddard School is a member of the TransAtlantic Business School Alliance (TABSA), an alliance that unites four European and four U.S. business schools to enable students to have cultural and educational experiences across geographic boundaries. Students may study in a two-to-four-week summer program, in a semester or year-long exchange, or in a double-degree two-year program in which students earn a degree in Business Administration from Weber State University, and a second bachelor's degree from the foreign partner university in international business. The European partners are: KEDGE Business School (Marseille, France); Bremen University of Applied Sciences (Bremen, Germany); University of Hertfordshire (Hatfield, England); and University of Valencia (Valencia, Spain). With respect to tuition, Goddard students attend foreign partner universities as pure exchange students. This means that they pay normal Weber State tuition and fees without any additional tuition charge at the partner institution.

In addition to TABSA partners, the Goddard School has signed cooperative agreements that allow for student exchanges with universities in the following countries: Austria (IMC University of Applied Science Krems, University of Applied Sciences Upper Austria in Steyr); Argentina (Austral University); Belgium (Université Catholique de Louvain); China (Shanghai Normal University); Germany (Hof University of Applied Sciences); Japan (Konan University); South Korea (University of Seoul, Incheon National University, Sookmyung Women's University, Sangmyung University, Kyungpook National University); Poland (University of Warsaw); Spain (University of Alicante). As with TABSA partners, Goddard School students pay normal Weber State tuition without any additional tuition charge.

The Goddard School offers an International Certificate which may be awarded with a baccalaureate degree offered by the School. This program description can be found under Institutional Certificate in the Degrees and/or Major Minor list.

Master of Business Administration

Master of Business Administration (MBA)

Program Prerequisite: Applicants must have earned a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited institution (or international equivalent) or be in the final stage of completing the undergraduate degree. If proof of completion of the bachelor's degree has not been received prior to the start of an admitted student's first semester in the MBA Program, they will not be allowed to start classes in the program until an official transcript with the posted bachelor's degree has been received by the MBA Program office. Completion of a course in college algebra or equivalent is required to enroll in MBA courses. Basic computer competency is also required.

Grade Requirements: To earn the MBA degree, candidates must complete all MBA program courses with a grade of "C" or higher. In addition, the overall cumulative MBA Program GPA must be 3.0 or higher, excluding transfer credits from other WSU graduate programs or other institutions. An elective course in which a grade lower than "C" is earned may be repeated or another elective may be taken in its place. Failure to maintain a 3.0 grade point average after two consecutive semesters, will result in academic probation in accordance with departmental policies. Students must meet with their academic advisor after notification of academic probation. Two consecutive semesters of academic probation will result in suspension from the program. A waiver of suspension will be considered according to due process.

Credit Hour Requirements: The MBA degree ordinarily requires a minimum of 36 semester hours of graduate work for persons with a recent undergraduate business degree from an AACSB-accredited business school. Individuals with business undergraduate degrees from non-AACSB-accredited schools may be required to complete additional foundations course work contingent on departmental analysis of their undergraduate transcripts. For persons with a non-business undergraduate degree, the program typically requires 54 semester hours, including foundations or leveling courses. Exemptions from foundations courses may be made based on equivalent undergraduate coursework. Specific program and course requirements are shown below.

Program Code: Business Undergrade (4026MBA1), Non-Business Undergrade (4026MBA2)

CIPC: 230101

Major Field Exemption

Students with business-related undergraduate degrees are exempted from the required MBA course in their major field of study (e.g. accounting, finance, economics, information systems, marketing, management, supply chain management, human resources) and will take an additional elective MBA course in its place.

The MBA Program Office must approve each MBA student's plan of study. The plan of study will show all courses necessary to meet the degree requirements. A formal plan of study will be filed when a student is accepted into the program.

If students deviate from their program of study without PRIOR written and documented departmental approval, those courses will NOT be counted toward graduation. Taking unapproved courses will be a costly and time intensive mistake. If you are in doubt about a course, please call or email the office and make an appointment with your advisor BEFORE starting the class.

Non-MBA Electives

Qualified students may take up to two MACC (Master of Accounting), MHA (Master of Health Administration), or MTAX (Master of Taxation) courses as MBA electives, counting six credit hours toward their MBA elective requirements. Four MHA courses may be counted towards MBA elective requirements for dual MBA-MHA degree students. Please contact the department to assure you meet pre-requisites for your desired elective and for assistance in getting an over ride in order to add the class to your schedule.

Qualified graduate students currently accepted into other Weber State University grad programs may cross over and take classes from the MBA. Students must meet all pre-requisites for any MBA class they may choose. An email from your graduate advisor stating that they will accept the MBA class as an elective into your program is required. Have them email staylor13@weber.edu requesting the course with the student's W number. An over ride to register will be placed in Banner and the student notified that they can add the class to their schedule.

Transfer Credits/Residency Requirements

The minimum residency requirements for the Goddard School MBA Program is two-thirds of the required number of credit hours for undergraduate business majors (the 36-hour track) and for non-business majors (the 54-hour track). Students who have completed business-related graduate course work at another AACSB-accredited institution prior to admission to the program may apply for transfer of graduate credits to satisfy their Goddard School MBA program of study, the number of transfer credits not to exceed the minimum residency requirements for the 36-hour or 54-hour program tracks (see above). Once admitted to the program, students may transfer only elective credits into the program from another AACSB-accredited institution. Required course credits may be accepted in transfer from another institution after admission to the Goddard School MBA Program only in circumstances where the student is unable to complete all required courses in residence due to relocation. All transfers are subject to program approval.

Time to Degree Completion

MBA students have a maximum of six calendar years to complete their degree completion requirements, starting from the first semester during which the student has registered for and begun taking classes. Students who exceed this requirement may submit a letter of appeal to the MBA Program Director to request that this requirement be waived. Students who fail to enroll in MBA courses for more than six years must apply for readmission to the program.

Admission Requirements

In addition to the program prerequisites specified above, the primary criteria in determining eligibility for admission to the Goddard School MBA Program are: previous academic achievement, performance on the Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) or Graduate Record Examination (GRE), and other factors such as work experience and career progression. The ideal applicant will present a strong overall previous academic record, strong letters of recommendation, and an above average total GMAT/GRE score, including high achievement on the verbal, quantitative, and analytical writing assessments.

Applicants are exempt from the GMAT/GRE requirement under the following circumstances:

if you have successfully completed one semester of college algebra AND; if you have previously earned a graduate degree from a regionally-accredited university (or international equivalent) OR;

if your undergraduate GPA and relevant career experience match the following criteria:

3.5+ GPA and 5+ years of relevant post-undergraduate career experience

3.0 - 3.5 GPA and 10+ years of relevant post-undergraduate career experience

Applicants must submit a completed application form and current resume, as well as transcripts from every institution of higher education attended. Letters of recommendation from appropriate professional and/or academic references are also required. Each applicant is considered on an individual basis. The MBA program will have limited enrollment. Any applicant who is admitted while other courses or programs are still in process of completion is admitted conditionally.

Additional Admission Requirements for International Students:

All international students and any applicant educated outside the U.S. must demonstrate proficiency in English. Those whose native language is not English, or whose language of instruction for their undergraduate degree was not English, will be required to submit a score from the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) which is not more than two years old and on which a minimum score of 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computer-based) or 80 internet based has been earned. Equivalent IELTS score also accepted in place of TOEFL.

In addition to a TOEFL or IELTS score, all applicants educated outside the U.S. must submit transcripts that have been evaluated by a WSU approved foreign credentials evaluation service. For a list of approved agencies, click here: <http://www.weber.edu/issc/credentials.html>
A translated transcript is not accepted. Transcripts must be evaluated on a course-by-course format, showing U.S. semester credit and grade equivalent for each course based on a 4.0 GPA scale.

Students participating in WSU approved "Exchange Programs" within the Goddard School of Business and Economics must meet the following requirements:

- Partner school must nominate student

- Provide evidence of English proficiency by a TOEFL or IELTS score as indicated above

- Meet all application and visa requirements as established by the International Students office. More information is available at this link:

Master of Accounting Program (MACC)

Program Director: Ryan Pace, 801-626-7562

Website: www.weber.edu/macc

An accounting professional in today's environment must possess a high level of technical competence, a sense of commitment to service, communication skills, analytical skills, and the ability to work well with people. To obtain the required body of knowledge and to develop the skills and abilities needed to be successful accounting professionals, serious consideration must be given to study beyond a four-year baccalaureate program. The Master of Accounting (MACC) Program provides an additional year of training for the professional accountant. In addition, the MACC satisfies the requirements of the Utah Certified Public Accountant Licensing Act for those wishing to sit for the Uniform CPA Examination. It gives the students an opportunity to increase the depth of their understanding in key areas and allows a broadening of perspective by providing course work in a variety of areas that cannot be considered in an undergraduate program due to time constraints.

Master of Accounting

Master of Accounting (MAcc)

Grade Requirements: A Master of Accounting MAcc student must complete all MAcc program courses, including electives, and any leveling courses, with a grade of "C" or higher. In addition, the overall program GPA must be 3.0 or higher.

Credit Hour Requirements: The program requires a minimum of 30 semester hours beyond a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Program Code: 4037MACC

CIPC: 520301

Admissions Requirements

A four year Bachelor's degree. If the degree is not in Accounting, leveling courses will be required for acceptance into the program.

Acceptable GMAT results unless the applicant has secured a GMAT waiver. Contact the program director for more details regarding possible GMAT waivers.

Acceptable grade point average in each of the following three areas:

Overall GPA

The last 60 credit hours of undergraduate work

Accounting course work only

Applicants must submit an online application, official GMAT results, current resume, and official transcripts from every institution of higher education attended. Two letters of recommendation are required. At least one of those letters should come from individuals who can evaluate the applicant's academic abilities. All letters should address the applicant's potential for successful graduate study. Each applicant is considered on an individual basis.

Additional Admission Requirements for International Students:

All international students and any applicant educated outside the U.S. must demonstrate proficiency in English. Those whose native language is not English, or whose language of instruction for their undergraduate degree was not English, will be required to submit a score from the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) or International Language Testing System (IELTS) which is not more than two years old. The TOEFL must have a minimum score of 80 (Internet-Based) and the IELTS must have a minimum of 6.5 with a minimum of 5.0 on each section. International students may be required to have their foreign transcript evaluated for U.S. equivalency.

Application for admission to the Master of Accounting Program should normally be made by August 1 (fall semester), December 1 (spring semester), and April 1 (summer semester) of the year during which admission is sought. Application for admission must include official GMAT results, official undergraduate transcripts, resume, and two letters of recommendation.

It is expected that the Master of Accounting Program will entail a minimum of two semesters of full-time study for a student with a bachelor's degree in accounting. Students with other business-related degrees can expect to spend about two years in the program. Those with non-business related undergraduate degrees should plan to spend at least three years in the program.

Master of Taxation (MTax)

Program Director: Ryan Pace, 801-626-7562

Website: www.weber.edu/mtax

The tax laws are vast, complex, and dynamic. Basic tax courses at the undergraduate level do not provide sufficient breadth or depth of coverage for future CPAs and tax consultants. Consequently, instruction at the graduate level is necessary. Tax law is a major branch of accounting. The Master of Taxation degree gives more recognition to a graduate as a tax specialist than does a Master of Accounting degree. The program is designed to provide students with the highly technical and demanding skills necessary to be effective tax and business consultants. Students will also acquire important tools necessary for effective research and communication in taxation.

Accounting

The School of Accounting & Taxation creates a synergy between accounting, business, and economic theory and contemporary practice to prepare working professionals and full-time students for careers in a global, culturally diverse, information-driven economy. Three principles are central to our mission:

- Education - The first, and foremost, is fostering learning through excellent teaching, individual attention, and scholarship, which develops, assesses, and disseminates good practice.

Research - The second is the application of theory to practice through applied research and scholarship, and the utilization of applied research to further learning in the classroom and through co-curricular activities.

Community - The third is advancing contemporary practice and creating learning opportunities by contributing to the accounting profession and to business and the community.

Accounting is defined as the process of gathering, classifying, interpreting, and presenting financial and non-financial information for decision-making purposes to diversified user groups. The field of accounting encompasses the well-recognized profession of public accounting including auditing, management advisory services, and tax services; professional careers in industry such as management accounting (controllership), cost accounting, and internal auditing; careers in various governmental agencies and other accounting and business-related fields.

Certification in public accounting in Utah requires 30 semester hours beyond a baccalaureate degree. Students should take advantage of opportunities to prepare themselves to sit for one of the professional examinations (such as Certified Public Accountant, Certified Management Accountant, and/or Certified Internal Auditor) at the culmination of their accounting program.

Finance

After studying in the School's core courses about the various functions in organizations, the student who concentrates in finance learns how to efficiently acquire, allocate, and control a firm's financial resources.

A background in finance will prepare the student to: (1) conduct detailed financial analyses; (2) relate the financial environment of an organization to the policies that organization will need for optimum returns; and (3) select and analyze investment opportunities for both individuals and organizations.

Bachelor of Science

Accounting (BS)

Goddard School of Business & Economics and completion of ACTG 2010, ACTG 2020, ECON 2010, ECON 2020, MIS 2010, and QUAN 2600. These six courses are referred to collectively as "Business Foundations." All Accounting courses numbered above 3000 require admission to the Goddard School and Business Foundations except ACTG 3110 and ACTG 3400.

Business Administration

The Business Administration (BSBA) degree is a general management degree. This major has been described as an undergraduate MBA because of its emphasis on breadth of education across all of the functional areas of business. This degree would be especially appropriate for students who wish to prepare for a generalist career in management rather than a focused career in a specialized area of business such as finance or marketing. It is also a very appropriate degree for the entrepreneurial students who aspire to start or run their own business one day.

Business Administration Human Resource Management (HRM) Emphasis

The student who concentrates in Human Resource Management prepares to apply the knowledge and skills needed to design, manage and deliver key organizational HRM functions. Through this, the HRM professional aids the effective alignment of people management objectives with organizational strategy for the purpose of increasing organizational efficiency and effectiveness. In addition to the John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics core requirements, the HRM student studies organizational behavior, leadership and teamwork skills, continuous improvement, effective communication, and information technology. HRM students will also take specialized courses in employment and labor law, employee training & development, recruitment & hiring decisions, and compensation & benefits.

Marketing

This is the only marketing program on WSU's campus. Students concentrating in marketing specialize in course work that deals with business activities involved in developing, communicating, delivering, and exchanging value for all stakeholders. Courses provide students with traditional and digital marketing concepts and experience in applying them. These courses prepare students to assume responsible positions in industry. Those desiring careers in marketing research or higher levels of corporate management are well prepared to enter graduate programs of their choice.

John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics Requirements

John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics Curriculum

The program of study within the John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics is designed to assist the students from admission to career placement. All degree programs within the Goddard School follow the same general pattern which is composed of five required elements: (1) Liberal Support Curriculum, (2) Business Foundations, (3) Admission and Major Declaration, (4) Business Core, and (5) Major Discipline.

1. Liberal Support Curriculum (7 credit hours)

The Liberal Support Curriculum consists of courses outside the John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics which provide critical skills and information useful to all business students. Students should complete the Liberal Support Curriculum as soon as possible because the knowledge attained in these courses will be used throughout the business curriculum.

Refer to department degree maps for assistance in course sequencing.

The Business Foundations Curriculum provides the base for all business and economic degree programs and should be completed early in the student's academic studies. To satisfy the Business Foundations requirement, courses must be completed with a grade of "C-" or higher. However, admittance to the Goddard School requires a cumulative GPA of 2.5 or higher for the six Business Foundation courses.

The Department of Economics offers six different degree programs. The career field selected will determine the educational goals a student must set and will be an important element in deciding which of the many avenues towards a bachelor's degree available in economics is best suited for you. Economics provides general analysis of decision making where resource constraints are present. Within the area of business, the fields of economics and finance are perhaps the most rigorous in terms of the use and application of mathematical and statistical reasoning. Students with a bachelor's degree in Business Economics are generally prepared to start their careers in any area of business, but are particularly prepared for jobs that call for data analysis, pricing, purchasing, and report writing. Business economists are often employed in private business firms in the financial, retailing, and industrial sectors. A complete career guide is available from the department chairperson. A degree in Business Economics is also regarded by graduate business schools as excellent preparation for advanced work toward an MBA, as well as advanced degrees in other business related disciplines such as human resource management, public administration, finance, and international business. Students seeking an advanced degree in economics, law, other social and behavioral sciences, urban and regional planning, actuarial science, etc., should also investigate the Economics Major.

Center for Economic Education

The Department has established a Center for Economic Education. Its basic function is to help educators in secondary and elementary schools improve their understanding and knowledge of economics. This will assist them in providing their students with the fundamental economic tools needed to evaluate complex national and international events that are a part of their daily existence.

All degree programs within the Goddard School follow the same general pattern which is composed of five required elements: (1) Liberal Support Curriculum, (2) Business Foundations, (3) Admission and Major Declaration, (4) Business Core, and (5) Major Discipline.

1. Liberal Support Curriculum (7 credit hours)

The Liberal Support Curriculum consists of courses outside the John B. Goddard School of Business & Economics which provide critical skills and information useful to all business students. Students should complete the Liberal Support Curriculum as soon as possible because the knowledge attained in these courses will be used throughout the business curriculum.

ENGL 2010 EN - Intermediate College Writing Credits: (3)

MATH 1050 QL - College Algebra Credits: (4)

ENGL 2010 and MATH 1050 must be completed with a grade of "C" or higher and may not be taken on a CR/NC basis. Courses required in the Liberal Support Curriculum for Goddard School majors may be used to satisfy specific university and general education requirements.

MATH 1010 is a prerequisite for ECON 1010 and ECON 2020. MATH 1050 is a prerequisite for QUAN 2400 and QUAN 2600. Students seeking a degree within the Goddard School of Business & Economics should plan to take the necessary mathematics courses as early as possible in their program of study.

2. Business Foundations Curriculum (16 credit hours)

Each major discipline within the Goddard School designates different course work. Consult the Degrees/Programs listing for the Major course work required. Generally, students should begin taking courses within their major area before completing all of the courses in the Business Core. Refer to department degree maps for assistance in course sequencing.

The Business Foundations Curriculum provides the base for all business and economic degree programs and should be completed early in the student's academic studies. To satisfy the Business Foundations requirement, courses must be completed with a grade of "C-" or higher. However, admittance to the Goddard School requires a cumulative GPA of 2.5 or higher for the six Business Foundation courses.

Everyone working in business needs a knowledge of these areas. Students should take course work within the Business Core as they are completing the courses within the Major Discipline. Department of Supply Chain & Management Information Systems

Department Chair: Seokwoo Song

Location: Wattis Business Building, Room 205

Telephone Contact: Nancy Tomon 801-626-7368

Assistant Professors: Evan Barlow, Jeffrey Clements, Francois Giraud-Carrier, Alicia Ingersoll

The Department of Supply Chain & Management Information Systems offers two Bachelor of Science degree programs. Supply Chain Management (SCM) provides students with the specialized skills to manage key value-added processes, inspire creative decision-making, and collaborate effectively with decision makers across the firm and around the world. The SCM program offers a whole-brain approach that incorporates relational and interpersonal skills with the technical side of logistics and operations management. Management Information Systems (MIS) prepares students to successfully navigate the business world by building technical, managerial and communication skills. The depth and breadth of technical know-how gained in the MIS program prepares students for a successful career as an Information Systems professional, helping organizations support business processes and solve business problems.

Supply Chain Management (SCM)

Supply Chain Management is "the value creation engine of every organization."

Everyone who participates in the creation and distribution of a product is part of a supply chain, and a Supply Chain Management major learns how to choreograph and manage this entire chain of activities from suppliers, manufacturers, service providers and distributors, to consumers. With its origins dating back to 1969, Weber State University's Supply Chain Management program is one of the oldest programs in the United States. Our program covers the depth and breadth of SCM, giving our students the foundation for successful careers in logistics, purchasing, operations, and other areas of supply chain management.

Employers recognize our graduates as some of the best in the field, and the demand for Weber State University SCM graduates is strong. Traditionally, graduates from our SCM program enjoy the highest average starting salary of all business majors, and job opportunities exceed the number of graduates. Global and area companies hiring our SCM graduates include Kimberly Clark, Toyota, Ford Motor Company, Autoliv, Orbital ATK, Intermountain Healthcare, Wal-Mart, J.C. Penney Company, UPS, Northrop Grumman, and the U.S. Air Force. The endowed Jerry & Vickie Moyes Center for Supply Chain Excellence supports opportunities in research, scholarship, and experiential learning for faculty and students. We are fortunate to enjoy an active relationship with our industry partner board which provides real-world insight for our program along with mentoring and internship opportunities for our students. In addition to many opportunities for internships, our supply Chain Management majors frequently also receive several scholarships from professional associations and area companies as well as from the Moyes Center.

Management Information Systems (MIS)

A bachelor's degree in Management Information Systems provides students with a balanced education between business and information technologies. It provides students with a broad background in basic business knowledge, problem solving, and computer technology and skills. Graduates from this major are prepared to help organizations use computer technology to support their business processes and solve their business problems. Technologies that all MIS majors study include software development, computer architecture, database design, computer networks, and systems analysis and design. In addition, students may also elect to study advanced networks, web development and management, data analytics, information security and computer forensics. The MIS lab provides hands-on experience in the latest technologies, including 3D printing, machine learning, and AI technologies.

Management Information Systems graduates may work for a large organization, specializing in one aspect of information technology, or as one of a few people supporting all areas of a smaller firm's computer technologies. The job will involve working with people to understand how they do their jobs and where computers can be most effective, implementing computer-based solutions, training people to use computer systems, installing and troubleshooting hardware, software, or networks, and helping management understand and plan for the best new technologies to integrate in the organization's business processes.

MIS graduates are well prepared for graduate school as well, frequently accepted to top graduate programs. The MIS Advisory Board maintains strong relationships with national and local employers, ensuring our program is developing graduates with skills to meet the current and future needs of business.

Communication is a dynamic process that plays a complex and profound role in shaping both individuals and society and is vital to the free exchange of ideas central to a democratic society. The Weber State University Department of Communication seeks to promote an understanding of this process and the effective and ethical practice of human communication by focusing on how people create and use messages to generate meanings within and across various contexts, cultures, channels and media, including those delivered through technology. WSU Communication Department curricula and programs are grounded within a liberal arts tradition and are designed to help students live vital and successful lives in an ever-changing global environment.

The curriculum for the major is designed to provide a liberal arts-based study of human communication combined with a course of study that prepares graduates for entry-level employment in Communication and Communication-related careers. The major also prepares students for graduate study in Communication and related disciplines. The Department is committed to enhancing student learning through required internships and through co-curricular opportunities afforded by our award-winning student-operated organizations, including The Signpost, KWCR Wildcat Radio, Ogden Peak Communications, Studio 76, and Weber State Debate and Speech Team.

Communication majors may select one of six emphasis areas: Civic Advocacy, Digital Media, Interpersonal & Family Communication, Multimedia Journalism, Organizational Communication, and Public Relations & Advertising. They may also select a Communication Teaching major with emphases in Communication Studies or Multimedia Journalism. Students may earn the Communication major as either a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Science degree.

The Communication minor and the Bachelor of Integrated Studies concentration in Communication (BIS) are designed to provide students with knowledge and skills in Communication that complement the major or other concentrations of study.

The interdisciplinary associate's degree in Workplace Communication & Writing is a career-oriented program designed to prepare students for entry-level careers in many fields while also preparing students for bachelor's degrees in Communication. The Associate of Science in Communication is another two-year degree offered that benefits students from many professions where communication plays a critical role.

In addition to emphasizing knowledge, understanding, and demonstrated competence in the skills of human communication, curricular and co-curricular programs emphasize the development of character in students. Accordingly, department faculty discourage symbolic expression that demeans and degrades other human beings, and encourage symbolic expression that celebrates the fundamental dignity of all human beings.

Obsolete Credit

Credit earned more than 10 years earlier than the proposed date of graduation will not be accepted for the major, minor or BIS concentration in Communication unless validated through a challenge examination or department chair approval.

Co-curricular and Extra-curricular Activities

Scholarships, Fellowships, and Tuition Waivers

Scholarships and/or tuition waivers are available to WSU Policy Debate Speech Team competitors and to The Signpost, KWCR Wildcat Radio, Ogden Peak Communications, and Studio 76 staff members. Other academic scholarships are also available. Contact the department office at 801-626-6426 or visit the department website at weber.edu/communication for more information.

Professional and/or Honorary Organizations

Communication students are encouraged to join one or more of the professional and/or honorary organizations affiliated with the department. Memberships in these organizations provide students with opportunities to meet and network with Communication professionals, learn about employment opportunities in the field of Communication, and participate in practical experiences relevant to future employment. Professional organizations in Communication include:

Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ)

Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA)

Lambda Pi Eta Honor Society (LPH)

Weber State Debate and Speech Team

Participation in intercollegiate debate and speech team activities is conducted in conjunction with the instructional program in argument, public speaking, and civic advocacy. Students participate in debate and speech team tournaments under supervision of the program's directors. The Department of Communication hosts the annual Bob Mukai College Classic, the annual Val Browning Round Robin, and the state high school debate and speech championship. Policy debate is a two-on-two format, centering on a policy question derived from a resolution. Policy debate simultaneously challenges and improves student research, analytical, advocacy, and public speaking skills. Speech competition is a contest between individuals or teams in various argument and advocacy skills that can be used and applied across the educational spectrum. There are four main categories of competition: platform speaking, interpretive speaking, limited preparation, and individual debate.

Weber State Student Media

The Signpost

Multimedia Journalism students polish reporting, writing, and multimedia skills at The Signpost, Weber State University's student-run news organization. Content is disseminated online 24/7 and via newspaper two days a week.

KWCR Wildcat Radio

Students practice and develop their knowledge and resumes by joining Weber State's student-run, digital-streaming radio station KWCR Wildcat Radio. Student staffers gain experience in audio production, podcast creation, live broadcasting, public relations, live event planning, social campaigns, and seeking music promoters and sponsorship opportunities. KWCR streams music, local sports, news, and specialty programs on the MyWeberMedia app and the RadioFX app.

Studio 76

Studio 76 produces high-quality video content for campus and community organizations as well as creates multiple studio shows ranging from a weekly newscast produced for The Signpost to in-studio entertainment shows. Studio 76 also offers live-streaming services to many campus clubs and organizations. Content is shown online via MyWeberMedia.com or Studio 76's YouTube channel.

Ogden Peak Communications

Students run a public relations and advertising agency to apply the skills they have learned in the classroom. Ogden Peak Communications works with clients to develop content and campaigns. Students take on the same roles and responsibilities as PR professionals.

The Department of English Language and Literature offers a broad spectrum of language, literature and writing courses. English majors and minors, English teaching majors and minors, English majors with professional and technical writing emphasis and professional and technical writing minors, and English majors with creative writing emphasis, in consultation with English department advisors, can select programs individually designed to satisfy academic requirements. Furthermore, students preparing for careers in law, medicine, business, public relations and government service may find departmental courses highly beneficial. The English Department has also designed courses for the general student in introductory and intermediate writing.

Students transferring to Weber State as English majors, with most of their junior and senior status completed, are required to take a minimum of 9 upper division credit hours, minors a minimum of 6 upper division credit hours. This requirement also applies to transfer graduate students.

English Composition Requirement

Students seeking the Associate of Applied Science degree must pass ENGL 1010 with a "C" grade (2.0) or better in order to satisfy the composition requirement. Students seeking any other degree must successfully complete ENGL 2010 with a grade of "C" or higher. Students placed in developmental English courses ENGL 0900 and ENGL 0955 must also pass those courses with grades of "C" or higher. Please note that English composition courses, whether developmental or not, are sequential and can not be taken out of numerical order.

Successful completion of ENGL 2010 with a grade of C or better satisfies the University core requirement for Composition. Entrance into ENGL 2010 can be accomplished in the following ways: 1) passing ENGL 1010 with a grade of C or better, 2) passing the AP language and composition or Literature and composition examination with a score of 3 or better, 3) achieving an ACT English and Reading score of 29 or better, 4) a CLEP with essay test with a score of 50 or better, or 5) articulated transfer credit from another regionally accredited college or university.

English Placement

Students are placed in the English developmental/composition sequence of courses either by ACT sub-scores or by Accuplacer scores. As of 2019, there is a new version. If you took the Accuplacer test prior to 2019, contact the Department of English for details.

ACT Sub-scores*	Accuplacer Scores	Course Placement
ACT English and Reading sub-score 29 or higher	Reading and Writing both 300	ENGL 2010
ACT English and Reading sub-scores both 17 or above	Writing scores both 250-299 or above	ENGL 1010
Lowest ACT English or Reading score from 13-16	Lowest Reading or Writing score from 237-249	ENGL 0955 or referred to the ESL office for non-native English speakers
Lowest ACT English or Reading score 12 or below	Both Reading and Writing score 236 or below	ENGL 0900 or referred to the ESL office for non-native English speakers

*ACT scores in English and Reading expire after 4 years. ACCUPLACER scores expire after 48 months.

ENGL 0960 [Inactive] does not satisfy the Developmental English Requirement for students admitted to Weber State University after Fall Semester 2005. Students admitted after Fall Semester 2005 who take ENGL 0960 [Inactive] will still be required to take ENGL 0900 and/or ENGL 0955, depending on their English placement.

International students who meet the University's TOEFL and IELTS requirements for admission are cleared to register for ENGL 1010.

International students who do not meet the University's TOEFL or IELTS requirements for admission and resident students for whom English is a second language who score 89 or below on the Accuplacer Test are required to take the LEAP Placement Test and complete appropriate ESL courses according to the test results. ESL classes fulfill foreign language credit toward a BA and AA degree or elective credit toward a BS and AS degree. Refer to the Learning English for Academic Purposes (LEAP) section of this catalog.

Interdisciplinary Minors

The English Department participates in the Asian Studies, Environmental Studies and Linguistics Minor Programs. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of this catalog.)

Interdisciplinary Associate's

The English Language and Literature Department participates in the interdisciplinary associate's degree in Workplace Communication and Writing (AS). Students who wish to enroll in this program should contact the English Language and Literature Department or one of the college advisors for the College of Arts & Humanities who will help them work out a schedule.

The English Department offers Face-to-Face (F2F), Hybrid, and Online (OL) classes.

The following definitions are intended to help faculty and students understand the differences between Face-to-Face (F2F), Hybrid, and Online (OL) classes taught in the English Department.

If less than 15% of the class sessions are online, a course will be designated Face-to-Face (F2F)-the current default for courses.

If 30–70% of class sessions are conducted online, normally but not exclusively in Canvas, courses will be designated Hybrid. This is consistent with WSU Online's definition.

Classes that are 100% online will be defined as Online (OL).

Classes will be designated as F2F, Hybrid, or OL prior to the time the department finalizes schedules for any given semester. The designation may not be changed once registration has opened or during the semester except in the event of extenuating circumstances such as injury, illness or university closure; Department Chair approval is required.

Within the various categories (F2F, Hybrid, Online) the table below illustrates how many online class sessions students can expect in each category. This number is dependent on how often a class meets: once a week (mainly evening classes), twice a week (TR or MW), and three times a week (MWF):

Course Scheduled As:	How Many Sessions May Be Online?
	F2F (up to 15% online)	Hybrid (30-70% online)	Online (100% online)
1x/week: (14-15 classes/semester)	2 sessions, maximum	Minimum 4 / Maximum 10 sessions	100%
2x/week: (TR or MW: 30 classes/semester)	4-5 sessions, maximum	Minimum 9 / Maximum 21 sessions	100%
3x/week: (MWF: 42 classes/semester)	6 sessions, maximum	Minimum 13 / Maximum 30 sessions	100%

English (BIS)

The English Department participates in the BIS degree program. For an English concentration, students should take a minimum of 18 credit hours as approved by the English Department. Students may choose either a literature concentration or a writing concentration. BIS students must meet with the English Department Chair to design their English component.

- create a specific academic program
- obtain a broad liberal education
- prepare for particular career goals and/or graduate school

To accomplish these general outcomes, the BIS student completes course work in three different disciplines. As a culminating experience, the student then synthesizes the three disciplines in a capstone project. For information about the requirements of the BIS Program, look at the BIS web site at weber.edu/bis/.

Program Prerequisite: Enroll into the BIS Program with an interview with the BIS Program Coordinator. Call 626-7713 to talk with the BIS secretary and schedule an appointment.

Department of Foreign Languages

Department Chair: Isabel Asensio

Location: Elizabeth Hall, Room 434

Telephone Contact: Sandy Thomas 801-626-6183

Professors: Isabel Asensio, Craig Bergeson, Thomas Mathews; Associate Professors: Diego Batista, Electra Fielding, Kacy Peckenpaugh, John Trimble; Assistant Professors: Youn Soo Goldstein, Vicente Iranzo, Aubrey Jones Kubiak; Visiting Assistant Professors: Cynthia Jones, Isabel Meusen; Instructors: Tomono Adachi, Chantal Esquivias

The Department of Foreign Languages promotes global awareness and intercultural understanding by providing instruction and study abroad opportunities in various languages. We prepare majors and minors to function effectively in a foreign language by offering courses in literature, culture, linguistics, pedagogy and language for professional purposes.

A bachelor of arts degree is offered. Students may select a regular major, a teaching major or a major with a commercial emphasis in French, German or Spanish. Regular and teaching minors are offered in these three languages as well. In addition, a Japanese minor is offered, and the department participates in Asian Studies, European Studies and Latin American Studies minors and in a departmental Honors Program. A language emphasis for the BIS degree requires a minimum of 18 hours, 15 of which must be upper-division course work. Courses in other languages may be offered as need and resources allow. The curriculum is based on the National Standards for measuring proficiency. Each course is designed to foster linguistic skills and to increase the student's ability to participate in the culture.

Foreign Language Requirement for the Bachelor of Arts Degree

The Bachelor of Arts degree includes a foreign language or ASL (American Sign Language) requirement which may be met by one of the following:

Documentation of a proficiency level of "Intermediate Low" or better through an examination administered by the WSU Foreign Language Department or through an examination by a recognized testing agency.

Completion of WSU foreign language course ASL 2020 or CHNS 2020 or FRCH 2020 or GRMN 2020 or ITLN 2020 or JPNS 2020 or PTGS 2020 or SPAN 2020 with a grade of "C" or higher, or comparable transfer credit.

Completion of any upper-division WSU foreign language course with a grade of "C" or higher, or comparable transfer credit.

Students for whom English is a second language may meet the BA foreign language requirement by verifying their proficiency in their native (non-English) language in cooperation with the Foreign Language Department and verifying their proficiency in English as a Second language by passing the ESL Special Examination.

Documentation of a minimum proficiency level in American Sign Language through an examination administered by the American Sign Language/Interpreting program at Salt Lake Community College (SLCC). The signer must "produce and maintain American Sign Language with continuity and precision."

Completion of SLCC's American Sign Language Course ASL 1050 with a grade of "C" or higher, or comparable transfer credit.

Completion of twelve semester-hours of foreign language.

Obtaining Foreign Language Credit for Prior Language Experience

Students with prior language experience may obtain lower-division foreign language credit by completing one of the following options:

Students may obtain credit for 1010, 1020, 2010 and 2020 by passing a higher numbered course with a minimum grade of "C"

Students may obtain credit for 1010, 1020, 2010 and 2021 through examination, but only in those languages in which the Department of Foreign Languages has expertise (usually limited to French, German, Japanese and Spanish). This examination is administered regularly by the department. Credit for Humanities General Education (2020) cannot be obtained through examination.

Upon payment of a nominal fee, hours earned through either option are recorded as "credit" on the transcript and do not affect the student's GPA. The department may accept results from other foreign language testing agencies as evidence of proficiency. Application for credit is to be made at the office of the Department of Foreign Languages.

Generally, students may not earn lower-division foreign language credit for proficiency in their native language. If a student's second language is English, then English may fill the BA foreign language requirement (see specific BA-major department advisors).

Interdisciplinary Minors

The Foreign Languages Department participates in the Asian Studies, European Studies, Linguistics, and Latin American Studies Minor Programs. Students who wish to enroll in one of these programs should indicate their desire to do so with the program coordinator who will help them work out a proper combination of courses to fit their particular needs. (See the Engaged Learning, Honors, and Interdisciplinary Programs section of this catalog.)

Oral Proficiency Requirements

The American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) has defined a scale for the evaluation of the language proficiency of students. The ACTFL Proficiency scale has four levels: Novice, Intermediate, Advanced and Superior. The Department of Foreign Languages requires that students achieve a determined proficiency level, depending on the students' goals. In addition, instructors assume that students entering any class have acquired the entry-level proficiency indicated for that class. (These levels are indicated in parentheses by the description of each course. N=Novice; NH=Novice High; IL=Intermediate Low; IM=Intermediate Mid; IH=Intermediate High; AL=Advanced Low.)

Novice (N)

Students at this level have no experience in the language they are studying. They begin by learning the sound and spelling system and by memorizing words and phrases. During the course, they will progress to the point of being able to create simple sentences, to ask some questions, and to initiate, sustain and conclude simple social tasks more than half of the time.

Novice High (NH)

At the Novice-High level student's progress from the ability to respond simply with learned utterances to the ability to create language face-to-face, to ask and answer simple questions, and to create sentence-level constructions.

Intermediate Low (IL)
